英语作为一门自然语言，其魅力不仅体现在丰富的词汇与独特的语法体系，更蕴藏在语言持续使用、不断发展过程中承载的文化与历史。想要学好英语 —— 乃至任何一门自然语言，都需要掌握行之有效的学习方法，坚持多听、多说、多读、多写、多记、多用。

曾有一位游人在游览杭州西湖后写下一首打油诗：

昔年曾见此湖图，不信人间有此湖。

今日打从湖上过，画工还欠费功夫。

受限于教材篇幅与编者学识眼界，英语语言文学的博大精深，难以在这几册书中尽数展现。但这无妨，不妨坚持学下去。或许有一天，当你学有所成，回望这套教科书，会由衷感慨：“如今识得英语趣，编者还欠费工夫。” 书山有路勤为径，祝愿大家在英语学习的道路上收获新知，不断进步！

UNIT 1 Happy Holiday

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Adam: Hi, Peter. How are you?

Peter: Hi, Adam. I'm fine, thanks.

Adam: How was your holiday?

Peter: It was fantastic.

Adam: Did you go anywhere interesting?

Peter: Yes, I went to Yunnan with my family.

Adam: Wow! That sounds great. Did you go to Lijiang?

Peter: Yes, we stayed in the old town for a few days, and we enjoyed it very much.

Adam: Did you visit Yulong Mountain? Everyone says it's beautiful.

Peter: It is! It just took my breath away. We took a lot of great photos there.

Adam: Did you eat anything special?

Peter: Yes, we did! Everything tasted good, especially the steamed chicken soup. What about you? Someone said you went to Beijing.

Adam: No, not this holiday. I did nothing special. I just stayed at home to read, play games, and relax, but it was still fun.

Passage 1

17th July

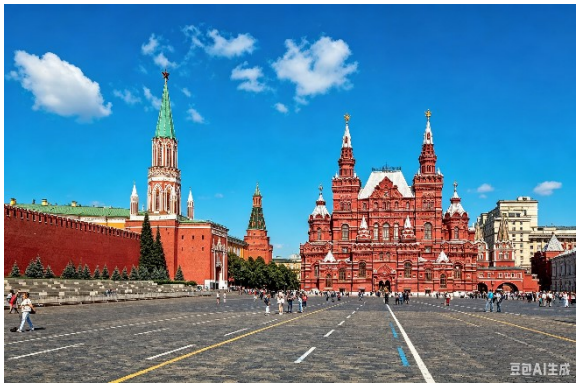

Today was our first day to visit Moscow. The weather was fine and everyone felt excited to visit some famous places in Russia.

In the morning, we went to the Victory Museum. The Russian people built this museum to remember their fight against the Nazis during World War II. As we walked through the halls, the tour guide told us stories about the war.

In one hall, I saw an artwork with thousands of glass "tears" falling down. It reminds us that war is terrible and peace does not come easily. We should not forget that.

LGPL3 Free as in Freedom

At noon, we had lunch at a restaurant near the park. I liked the ice cream there, so I ate a lot of it. But, during dinner, I didn't feel like eating because I felt sick. So now, I just want to get a good night's sleep.

18th July

It rained last night, so this morning the air was fresh and cool. I felt much better today.

We took the Moscow Metro to travel around. The metro stations are really beautiful. Sometimes I felt like I was walking inside a palace. After that, we went to Red Square. It was fantastic!

In the afternoon, we arrived at a school and met a group of Russian students. We played games and soon became friends. Later, someone took out his accordion, and soon everyone got together to sing and dance. We were so happy that we didn't notice the time. It was such a good experience!

Passage 2

My Holiday in Scotland

Last autumn, my family took a train to Scotland for a holiday. We stayed in a comfortable house in the countryside with beautiful scenery. I live in a big city, so everything seemed so different. For example, beside the house, there was a huge forest.

On the last day, early in the morning, I went to the forest to explore. While there, something made a noise. I turned around and was surprised to see a deer.

I ran home and told my parents what I saw. My mum smiled and said, “The deer is probably looking for food and hoping to get some from you.” What a wonderful experience I had! I really hope I can go back again.

Passage 3

Holiday Experiences

Lin Tao

My best holiday experience was two years ago. My family lives in Wuhan, the biggest city in Central China. That summer, I decided to do something cool: cycling from Wuhan to Beijing with some friends from college. My parents were surprised at my idea, but soon they gave me all their support. With their help, I made a cycling plan.

I also learnt a lot from other people's cycling experiences. I packed everything I needed and started the trip. The cycling took us almost a month to complete. It was tiring but worthwhile. I saw beautiful mountains, forests, and rivers. I met a lot of nice people, and some of them gave me a lot of help along the way. But there were also difficulties, and sometimes I just wanted to give up. However, when I finally arrived at Tian'anmen Square, I was so proud of myself.

Amanda

My best holiday experience was when I learnt to scuba dive. My family and I went to a town beside the ocean. At first, I took some classes to learn how to scuba dive safely. I practised in a swimming pool for a few days. Then, I lived on a boat for a week in order to do scuba diving in the ocean. Every day, I went scuba diving with a guide. I saw so many colourful fish, amazing sea animals, and fantastic coral everywhere. While I was diving, another diver pointed, and I realized there was a baby shark near me. It was a stunning experience, and I will never forget it!

KS Indefinite Pronouns 不定代词

Indefinite pronouns refer to nonspecific people, places, or things, including simple indefinite pronouns like all, both, either, neither, some, any, many, much, few, little, several, each, enough, most, other, another; compound indefinite pronouns that are formed with some-, any-, every-, and no- plus endings like -body, -one, -thing, and -where; and indefinite adjectives like every and no.

不定代词指代不确定的人、地点或事物，包含 all, both, either, neither, some, any, many, much, few, little, several, each, enough, most, other, another 等独立不定代词；以 some-、any-、every-、no- 为前缀，以 -body、-one、-thing、-where 为后缀构成的复合不定代词和不能独立做代词的形容词性不定代词 every 和 no。

Independent indefinite pronouns may function as subjects alone or as adjectives modifying subjects. The number of modified nouns is determined by the pronoun's meaning, and verbs follow subject-verb agreement.

独立不定代词既可以单独作主语也可以作为形容词修饰和限定主语，被修饰和限定的名词单复数取决于独立不定代词的意思，动词根据主谓一致原则确定形式。

Compound indefinite pronouns can be used as subjects and take singular third-person verbs. We use some- for indefinite quantities, use every- for complete quantities, use no- for absence, and use any- for indefinite quantities with a negative verb or in questions. Compound indefinite pronouns with no- can be replaced equivalently by not + any- structure. Adjectives used to modify compound indefinite pronouns are placed after them.

复合不定代词可单独作主语但不可作形容词修饰和限定主语，动词用单数第三人称形式。其中，*some-*用在肯定句中表示不确定的数量；*every-*用在肯定句中表示全部数量；*no-*用在肯定句中表示不存在；*any-*用在

LGPL v3 Free as in Freedom

否定句或疑问句中表示不确定数量。*No-*开头构成的复合不定代词可由 *not any-*等价替换。复合不定代词后可加形容词以对其修饰或限制。

Indefinite adjectives, i.e. every, each, can only modify and limit subjects and cannot be used as subjects alone.

形容词性不定代词 every、each 只能修饰和限定主语，不能单独作主语使用。

Lilliput

(Adapted from Jonathan Swift's Gulliver's Travels)

My gentleness and good behaviour won favour with the emperor, his court and common people, so I began to hope for liberty soon. I tried every means to keep their good-will. Little by little, locals feared me less. Sometimes I lay down and let five or six of them dance on my hand; children even dared to play hide-and-seek in my hair.

The emperor showed me local performances. The most amazing was rope-dancing on a thin white thread. Only candidates for high court posts practised it. Trained from childhood, they competed for vacant offices: whoever jumped highest without falling got the position. Ministers also had to prove their skills.

Flimnap, the treasurer, could cut a caper higher than any other noble. I watched him do several somersaults on a board fixed to a thin rope. My friend Reldresal ranked second. These shows were risky. Competitors pushed themselves too hard and often fell. Once Flimnap nearly broke his neck in a fall, saved only by the king's soft cushion on the ground.

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Dad: Guess what! Grandpa and Grandma are visiting us this weekend!

Jim: Oh, great!

Peter: I can't wait to show them our new house!

Mum: Yes, but now we need to get ready for their arrival. Can you help me clean up their room?

Peter: But their room is already clean!

Mum: Well, it's not "grandma clean" yet!

Peter: Oh, OK.

Dad: Jim, can you help me put the new clock on the wall? I bought it for Grandpa to see the time.

Jim: Sure, Dad.

Dad: Helen, can you move this chair to their room? Grandpa likes reading books in front of the window.

Helen: No problem, Dad. Can I put some flowers by the window?

Dad: Yes, good idea! Grandma loves flowers.

Helen: Mum, could you take me to the flower shop later?

Mum: No problem. Let's go after lunch.

Passage 1

Going Home for the Spring Festival

"It's almost the Spring Festival. Can we go to Hainan for the holiday, Dad?"

"Not this time," Dad answered with a smile. "We're going to your mum's hometown!"

Soon the day of our family trip came. We got up very early in the morning to catch the train. The train journey took more than seven hours, and then we changed to a bus to get to my grandparents' village in the evening. At the end of the road, I saw Grandpa and my little cousin standing in the cold wind waiting for us. We walked quickly to greet them.

Grandpa helped us pull the heavy luggage into the house.

"Ah, home again!" said Mum with a smile on her face. Grandma, my aunt, and my uncle were busy cooking dinner in the kitchen. They were very happy to see us. After a little while, my parents went to the kitchen to help.

"Could you bring Wenwen her favourite snacks?" Grandma asked Grandpa.

I shared the snacks with my cousin and told Grandpa about school. He was happy to hear I was doing well at school. When dinner was ready, I asked, "Can I help?"

"You can set the table," Dad said.

We then enjoyed all the delicious food.

"Mm, the familiar taste of home!" said Mum.

During the dinner, my uncle told us some jokes and we had a good laugh. Several days later when we were leaving, Grandma held my hands and asked us, "Will you come home more often?"

Mum nodded, with tears in her eyes.

Passage 2

Hi John,

It was fun to decorate your room last month. I share a room with my brother. We want to decorate it too. Can you help us?

Right now, the walls are blue. There are cute animals on them, but the animals look too young for us. We want to cover the animals and paint the walls light green. What do you think about the colour?

On Sunday, we can meet at the paint shop near the shopping centre and choose the paint together. Then we can paint the room with my brother. I loved the brushes we used for your room. Can you bring them?

After painting, could you help choose some photos to hang on the walls? Let me know what you think.

Best,

Zhang Peng

Passage 3

Anne's Decision

(Adapted from Lucy Montgomery's Anne of Green Gables)

Anne was adopted by Marilla when she was little. They lived happily together on a farm called Green Gables. Now Anne is going to a university out of town, but Marilla gets sick ...

Anne came back and found Marilla sitting by the kitchen table. She looked tired.

"Are you OK, Marilla?"

"I saw the doctor," Marilla said sadly. "But it's no good talking about it, Anne. Can you get me a cup of tea?"

"Could you tell me what the doctor said?" Anne asked softly as she brought tea to Marilla.

"He said I must give up all reading, sewing, and farming, or I will go blind."

"Marilla, don't think of it," said Anne. "There is still hope."

"I don't know," said Marilla. "I'm afraid I have to sell Green Gables."

Anne was surprised. "Oh, Marilla, you can't! It's our home!"

"What else can I do, Anne? I'm sorry you won't have a home to come to during your university holidays." Marilla began to cry.

That night, Anne sat in the darkness, alone with her tears and heavy heart. But before long, there was a smile on her lips and peace in her heart.

The next day, she spoke with Marilla. "You mustn't sell Green Gables. I'm going to teach here. I can't leave you alone, Marilla. I'll read to you. We'll be happy together."

"Oh, Anne, you can't do that for me."

"But I want to! Nothing is worse than giving up our home."

"But your dreams ..."

"My dreams are the same: to be a good teacher, and to help you stay healthy. Nobody loves Green Gables as we do. We must keep it."

Most people, not knowing about Marilla's eyes, thought Anne was foolish. Mrs. Lynde, their neighbour, did not. She often found Anne and Marilla sitting outside their home. They liked sitting there at dusk, when the smell of flowers filled the air.

KS Converting Adjectives to Adverbs 形容词、副词转化

An adjective is a word that describes or modifies a noun or pronoun, providing additional details about it. An adverb is a word that modifies a verb, adjective, or other adverbs, often answering questions like how, when, where, or to what degree.

形容词用来描述或修饰名词、代词，补充相关细节。副词用来修饰动词、形容词或其他副词，通常回答方式、时间、地点、程度这类问题。

Usually, adjectives follow these rules when converting them to adverbs:

· Add –ly: quick→quickly, careful→carefully, natural→naturally, slow→slowly;

· Change –le into –ly: simple→simply, terrible→terribly, possible→possibly;

· Change –y into –ily if and only if preceded by consonant: happy→happily, angry→angrily;

· Add –ally when ending in –ic: basic→basically, fantastic→fantastically.

Some words can be both adjectives and adverbs, like fast, hard, early, late, high, low, right, wrong, daily, etc. Besides, some words ending in –ly are adjectives with no corresponding adverb forms, like friendly, lovely, lonely, lively, kindly, etc.

通常，形容词转化为副词遵循以下规则：

· 直接加 ly，例如：quick→quickly, careful→carefully, natural→naturally, slow→slowly；

· 变 le 为 ly，例如：simple→simply, terrible→terribly, possible→possibly；

· 当且仅当以“辅音+y”结尾，变 y 为 i 加 ly，例如：happy→happily, angry→angrily；

· 以 ic 结尾的，加 ally，例如：basic→basically, fantastic→fantastically。

一些单词同时具有形容词和副词两种词性，例如：fast, hard, early, late, high, low, right, wrong, daily。一些以 ly 结尾的单词不是副词而是形容词，且没有对应的副词，例如：friendly, lovely, lonely, lively, kindly。

UNIT 3 Same or Different?

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Han Lin: Congratulations on winning the prize at the school music festival!

The twins: Thank you!

Han Lin: You attended the festival last year and this year. How is this year different?

Ella: There are more students and more activities this year. I think it is more colourful than last year.

Han Lin: As twins, you look very similar. How are you different?

Emma: I'm a little quieter than Ella. And she is funnier than me.

Ella: Emma always gets up earlier than me. Many people say I'm lazier than Emma, but that's not true! I work as hard as her!

Han Lin: That's really interesting. Besides singing, how do you both spend your spare time?

Ella: I love playing sports more than anything.

Emma: I like reading. You see, we're different in many ways, but together, we make a great team!

Han Lin: Thanks for talking with me.

The twins: Our pleasure!

FORUM

Tom 5 hours ago

Some people think that friends should be alike, but some other people think that friends should be different. What do you think? Should friends be similar or different?

Matt 4 hours ago

I think a good friend is like a mirror. You can understand people by knowing their friends. My friend, Stephen, is a great example. We often hang out together because we have similar hobbies and interests. For example, we both love sports. He plays badminton better than I do, so he always wins our matches. Because of that, I try harder when I practise, and now I'm getting better at badminton.

LGPL Free as in Freedom

Stephen and I are similar in other ways. He is as serious as me. When we aren't playing sports, we enjoy reading together. I read more history books than he does, and he reads a lot of novels. We often share interesting books with each other.

Diana 3 hours ago

I don't agree. For me, friends who are different make me better. I think we should respect each other's differences and learn from each other. For example, I am kind of shy, but my best friend, Yuan Lei, is outgoing. She has a great sense of humour too. Thanks to her, I am becoming more outgoing. Now I think meeting new people is really fun!

I have another friend, Zhang Yong. He is not afraid to give his opinion, especially when he thinks I am making a mistake. I am less straightforward than he is, but I am glad to have an honest friend.

Rose 3 hours ago

I don’t really care if my friends are similar to or different from me. I have two amazing friends. Lily is funnier than anyone else I know. When I feel sad or have a problem, she makes me laugh and feel better. She helps me see the silver lining in difficult situations.

My other friend, Lucy, is not as funny as Lily. Lucy is quieter, but she listens better than others. Lucy and I talk about everything. I know she cares about me because she’s always there to listen.

My favourite saying is, “A true friend reaches for your hand and touches your heart.” Both Lily and Lucy are true friends. We are always ready to help each other by lending a hand.

Passage 2

These days, two problems have brought me headaches. Days ago, I had an argument with my best friend Rita and we don’t talk to each other now. I don’t want to lose a close friend. The other problem is that I become overweight now. What should I do?

Sophia, Canada

Hi, Sophia. I know all about your problems. I’m happy to share something with you.

It’s common for friends to disagree with each other on some things. But arguments sometimes might lead to worse results. I think you can meet for coffee or a walk, and talk to her face-to-face.

As is known to all, when it comes to losing weight, small daily habits beat big diets. You had better go to school on foot and cook simple meals with veggies and lean protein. Only in this way can you keep fit.

Hope these help! Have a nice day!

Passage 3

Four Brothers

(Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tale)

Once upon a time, there were four brothers.

"I can see farther than anyone," the first brother said. "At the top of that tree, there are five eggs in a nest."

"I am faster than all of you—I move as quickly as a cat," said the second brother. He climbed up, took the eggs quietly, and then put them back. The bird never noticed it.

"I can shoot better than all of you," said the third. He then shot a leaf above the nest.

The fourth brother said, "I can sew anything together, even something as soft as that leaf." In no time, the leaf was as good as new.

Not long after, the king's daughter was taken away by a dragon. The king said whoever brought the princess back could marry her.

The first brother said, "I see her! She is far away, on a rock at sea, with the dragon." So the brothers sailed to the rock.

The third brother said, "I may hurt the princess if I shoot the dragon."

"Leave it to me," said the second brother. He moved as quietly as a mouse and quickly freed the princess.

Suddenly, the dragon began to chase them. The third brother shot it, but its tail broke their ship. Luckily, the fourth brother took his needle and sewed the ship together. Then they sailed home safely.

The happy king asked, "Which of you will marry my daughter?" The brothers began to argue. Each brother believed that he did more than the others. Finally, the king said, "Each of you is as good as the others, but you are much stronger together. Instead, I give half of my kingdom to you as a reward." The brothers were pleased. It was much better to share than to fight.

KS1 Comparatives 形容词/副词比较级

Comparatives are words that allow us to compare two things. They help us show that one thing has a greater or lesser degree of a quality than another. The basic structure for comparing two items is: S + be / do + adj/adv-er + than + the other part. To make yes-no questions, we put be or auxiliary verb before the subject.

比较级用于两者之间进行比较，表示某一事物在某种性质上的程度高于或低于另一事物，其基本结构为：主语 + be 动词或实义动词 + 形容词/副词比较级 + than + 其他。一般疑问句将 be 或助动词提前即可。

"Adj/adv-er + and + adj/adv-er" structure is used to mean getting more and more. For those longer with two or more syllables, or the adverbs ending in –ly, we use "more and more + adj/adv" structure instead.

我们使用"比较级 and 比较级"结构来表达"越来越…"的含义，对于多音节词和以 ly 结尾的副词，该结构变换为"more and more + 形容词/副词原级"。

"The adj/adv-er, the adj/adv-er" structure is used to mean as one thing changes, the other changes at the same time.

我们使用"The + 比较级, the + 比较级"结构来表达"当一件事情改变，另一件事随之改变"的含义。

"as + adj/adv + as" structure shows two things are the same degree, while "not as/so +adj/adv + as" structure shows one thing is NOT the same degree as the other. Sometimes, we also use "less + adj/adv + than" to show lower degree.

我们使用"as + 形容词/副词原级 + as"结构来表达两者程度相同，使用"not as/so + 形容词/副词原级 + as"结构来表达两者程度不同（其含义侧重于前者在某方面不及后者）。有时也会使用"less + 形容词/副词原级 + than"结构来明确前者在某方面不及后者的含义。

KS2 Spelling Rules for Comparatives (adj/adv-er)

Usually, adjectives and adverbs follow these rules when converting them to their comparatives:

· Add –er: tall→taller, fast→faster, small→smaller, high→higher;

· Change –y into –ier if and only if preceded by consonant: happy→happier, funny→funnier;

· Double final consonant (CVC + stress), then add –er: big→bigger, red→redder;

· Add more before when longer with two or more syllables, or the adverbs ending in –ly: interesting→more interesting, happily→more happily.

Some words don't follow the regular rules above, like good/well→better, bad/badly→worse, many/much→more, little→less, far→farther/further.

通常，形容词和副词在变为比较级时遵循以下规则：

· 直接加 er，例如：tall→taller, fast→faster, small→smaller, high→higher；

· 当且仅当以“辅音+y”结尾，变 y 为 i 加 er，例如：happy→happier, funny→funnier；

· 双写末尾辅音字母（重读闭音节“辅+元+辅”结构）加 er，例如：big→bigger, red→redder；

· 多音节词和由形容词转化而来的副词，词前加 more，例如：interesting→more interesting, happily→more happily。

有些单词不遵循上述变化规则，例如：good/well→better, bad/badly→worse, many/much→more, little→less, far→farther/further。

Poems Celebrating the Beauty of Our Differences

Still I Rise

(Adapted from Maya Angelou's Still I Rise)

You may write me down in history
With your bitter, twisted lies,
You may trod me in the very dirt
But still, like dust, I'll rise.

You may shoot me with your words,
You may cut me with your eyes,
You may kill me with your hatefulness,
But still, like air, I'll rise.

Out of the huts of history's shame. I rise
Up from a past that's rooted in pain. I rise
I'm a black ocean, leaping and wide,
Welling and swelling I bear in the tide.

Bringing the gifts that my ancestors gave,
I am the dream and the hope of the slave.
I rise!
I rise!!

Proverbs about Differences between People

- The difference is wide that the sheets will not decide.
- Do not have each foot on a different boat.
- One man's meat is another man's poison.

UNIT 4 Amazing Plants and Animals

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Ella: Oh, what's that, Chen Jie? It's so beautiful!

Chen Jie: Thanks. It's a folding fan. I bought it last year.

Ella: Oh! It has a painting of bamboo on it.

Chen Jie: Yeah. Bamboo is one of the most popular subjects in Chinese paintings. It's a symbol of goodness in Chinese culture.

Ella: I didn't know that before. So, where did you get that fan?

Chen Jie: At the Bamboo Sea in Sichuan, the largest and oldest bamboo forest in China. I learnt lots of interesting things when I was there.

Ella: Really? Like what?

Chen Jie: Well, bamboo is one of the fastest-growing plants. Some bamboo can grow almost one metre in one day. Also, it's one of the most useful plants in the world. People can use it to build houses and make tools and instruments.

Ella: Oh, that's interesting. I remember pandas love to eat bamboo too, right?

Chen Jie: Exactly! Actually we eat bamboo shoots too. They're really delicious.

Passage 1

We Can't Live Without Bees

Imagine you go to the supermarket in your area, but there are almost no fruits, vegetables, honey, milk, eggs, or chocolate. How would you feel? Disappointed? Angry? Sad? At this moment you realize people, plants, and animals are all connected. We need each other to live, and bees are one of the best examples of this connection.

Bees are very hard-working animals, and their greatest work is pollination. On one trip, they often visit 50 to 100 flowers. As they fly from one flower to another, they take pollen with them. This action helps plants grow. In fact, without their work, about 80 per cent of the plants in the world cannot grow. For this reason, many scientists believe that bees are the most important animals on this planet.

Bees are also one of the most interesting animals in the world. For example, they work hard together to make their homes. In order to store honey, they create honeycombs. Another interesting thing about bees is how they communicate. When a bee finds new food, it uses a dance to tell the others where and how far away the food is.

Bees play an important part in the ecosystem of our planet. However, the number of bees is dropping, and scientists are worried. They need our help, and there is a lot we can do. Think about what you can do to protect one of the most amazing animals on earth.

Passage 2

The Blue Whale

The blue whale is the largest and heaviest animal on earth. It can weigh as much as 200 tons. Many people like watching blue whales swim, and they think it is one of the most beautiful things to see. Blue whales live in all oceans except the Arctic Ocean. They eat a lot, but they eat some of the tiniest animals in the ocean. A blue whale can eat around four tons of these a day.

Blue whales can live up to 90 years. When a blue whale dies at sea, it becomes food for many kinds of animals living in and around the sea. This food lasts for over a year and it helps to create a lively and healthy ecosystem. Blue whales play an important role in our world, so we must protect them.

Passage 3

The Brave Homing Pigeon

(Adapted from Ernest Seton's Animal Heroes)

Somewhere in the Atlantic Ocean, 1862.

The captain sighed. This was the thickest fog he had ever seen. They were over 330 kilometres from the closest land, so he didn't know where to go. The ship was on its way to Europe. Just ten hours ago they left New York, but now the engine stopped working. Clearly, they needed help!

Suddenly, the captain remembered the homing pigeons. He ran to them quickly, wrote a message for help, and tied it to Big Blue's leg. Big Blue flew up and then returned almost right away.

The captain became more worried.

"You are our last hope, little guy," said the captain as he tied a note to Arny, the smaller and younger of the two pigeons. The captain threw him into the air. Arny flew around and around, higher and higher. Soon, the bird was away from the ship, and the captain couldn't see Arny anymore.

"That's a good sign," said the captain with more hope.

Almost 340 kilometres away, Billy heard fast-moving wings come into his building and go straight to the water bowl.

"Hi there, little guy. Well, aren't you the thirstiest bird!" Billy smiled. Then he saw the note.

Billy knew what to do. He took the note, running as fast as he could to the company office. There, he learnt Arny had flown in fog and over the sea, for more than four hours.

Thanks to Arny, people sent help to the ship.

The captain later explained, "Arny really is the most amazing bird!"

KS1 Superlatives 形容词/副词最高级

Superlatives are used to compare three or more people or things. They show that something has the greatest or least degree of a quality among a group. The basic structure is: S + be / do + the + adj/adv-est + of / in + comparison range. To make yes-no questions, we put be or auxiliary verb before the subject.

最高级用于三者或三者以上的人或事物之间进行比较。表示在一组人或事物中某一事物在某种性质上程度最高或最低，其基本结构：主语 + be 动词或实义动词 + the + 形容词/副词最高级 + of/in + 比较范围。一般疑问句将 be 或助动词提前即可。

We use "one of the + adj/adv-est + plural noun" structure to express "among the most … things / people".

我们使用"one of the 形容词/副词最高级 + 名词复数"结构来表达"最…之一"的含义。

KS2 Spelling Rules for Superlatives (adj/adv-est)

Usually, adjectives and adverbs follow these rules when converting them to their superlatives:

· Add –est: tall→tallest, fast→fastest, small→smallest, high→highest;

· Change –y into –iest if and only if preceded by consonant: happy→happiest, funny→funniest;

· Double final consonant (CVC + stress), then add –est: big→biggest, red→reddest;

· Add most before when longer with two or more syllables, or the adverbs ending in –ly: interesting→most interesting, happily→most happily.

Some words don't follow the regular rules above, like good/well→best, bad/badly→worst, many/much→most, little→least, far→farthest/furthest.

通常，形容词和副词在变为最高级时遵循以下规则：

· 直接加 est，例如：tall→tallest, fast→fastest, small→smallest, high→highest；

· 当且仅当以"辅音+y"结尾，变 y 为 i 加 est，例如：happy→happiest, funny→funniest；

· 双写末尾辅音字母（重读闭音节"辅+元+辅"结构）加 est，例如：big→biggest, red→reddest；

有些单词不遵循上述变化规则，例如：good/well→best, bad/badly→worst, many/much→most, little→least, far→farthest/furthest。

KS3 Conversion between Comparative and Superlative 形容词/副词比最转换

We can rewrite superlative sentences into comparative sentences and vice-versa. This transformation is mainly used for sentences describing people or things within the same group.

The common comparative structure equivalent to superlative is:

· adj/adv–er + than + any other + singular noun ⇔ the + adj/adv–est;

· adj/adv–er + than + the other + plural noun ⇔ the + adj/adv–est.

最高级句子和比较级句子可以相互转换，用于描述同一群体内部的人或事物。可等价替代最高级的常用结构有：

· 形容词/副词比较级 + than + any other + 可数名词单数 ⇔ the + 形容词/副词最高级；

· 形容词/副词比较级 + than + the other + 可数名词复数 ⇔ the + 形容词/副词最高级。

Yellowstone National Park

A national park is a large piece of land where animals are free to come and go. Trees and plants grow everywhere. People go to a national park to enjoy nature. Many people stay in campgrounds in national parks. They sleep in tents and cook their food over campfires. They also walk on trails or paths in the parks. On a gate at the entrance of Yellowstone, a sign says, “For the Benefit and Enjoyment of the People.”

Yellowstone is the world's oldest national park. It became a national park in 1872. It is also the world's largest park. It covers parts of the states of Wyoming, Montana, and Idaho. Yellowstone is two-and-a-half times the size of the smallest state, Rhode Island.

Yellowstone is famous for its geysers. These holes in the ground shoot hot water into the air. There are about seventy geysers in the park. The most famous is Old Faithful. About every hour Old Faithful shoots hot water hundreds of feet into the air.Two-and-a-half million people visit this beautiful park each year. Park rangers give information to visitors. They also take care of the park. They tell visitors not to pick the flowers. They also tell them not to feed or hunt the animals.

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Peter: Hey Teng Fei, can you teach me how to cook a popular Chinese dish?

Teng Fei: Sure. How about stir-fried eggs and tomatoes?

Peter: Great idea. How do we make it?

Teng Fei: We need eggs, tomatoes, salt, and sugar.

Peter: OK. How many tomatoes and eggs do we need?

Teng Fei: Four tomatoes and three eggs.

Peter: OK. What should we do with the tomatoes and eggs?

Teng Fei: First, cut the tomatoes into small pieces. Next, mix the eggs in a bowl.

Peter: Like this?

Teng Fei: Perfect. Then, heat some oil in a pan and add the eggs to it. Stir-fry for one minute. Then take the eggs out of the pan.

Peter: Got it.

Teng Fei: Next, cook the tomatoes in the pan until they’re soft. Then, add some salt and sugar.

Peter: What an amazing smell! What’s next?

Teng Fei: Finally, put the eggs back into the pan and mix them with the tomatoes.

Peter: Wow, it looks so good! How simple!

Passage 1

"Cooking is love made visible." That is what my grandmother always told me. Thanks to her, I love cooking. It's a great way for me to share my love with others. Every time I sit at the table, after cooking for my family, we create memories. The smells and the food's taste, along with our conversations, connect us to each other. What wonderful memories I have!

One of my favourite memories is my grandmother's pumpkin pie. She always made it in autumn, when the weather got colder. Her friendly kitchen was the perfect place to warm up and enjoy a taste of the changing seasons. I still remember the days when the smell of cinnamon filled the room with sweetness. Now, every time I smell cinnamon, I think of my grandmother's pumpkin pie.

My grandmother told me about her first pumpkin pie. When she was a college student in the US, she stayed with a host family. One year around Thanksgiving, the hostess taught her how to make a pumpkin pie. Many years later, she taught me how to make it too.

Pumpkin Pie Recipe

Ingredients: eggs, sugar, cinnamon, salt, pumpkin, cream, pie crust

Instructions:

· First, mix the eggs.

· Then, add the sugar, cinnamon, salt, pumpkin, and cream.

· Next, pour the mixture into the pie crust.

· After that, place the pie in the oven and cook for 40 to 50 minutes.

· Finally, let the pie cool for at least an hour before serving.

My grandmother loved learning how to make food from other cultures. "It's my way of making friends from around the world," she said. Grandmother taught me the secret to cooking: Cook with love. Thanks to my grandmother, I love to try new food and new recipes from other countries and cultures.

Passage 2

My Favourite Dish: Guoqiao Rice Noodles

@thechinesechefblog Long ago, there was a couple living in Yunnan Province, China. The husband studied on an island far from his home. When his wife went a long way to send meals, the food always got cold. One day, the wife boiled some chicken soup and used a large pot to keep it warm. And she kept the ingredients separate. She put the ingredients into the soup when she reached the island, and she found everything still hot. The Guoqiao Rice Noodles was born! Here’s how to make the dish:

· First, wash the vegetables and mushrooms.

· Next, cut the chicken and pork into thin pieces.

· Then, boil the chicken soup and pour it into a large bowl.

· After that, put the ingredients into the bowl, one by one.

· Finally, add the boiled rice noodles to the bowl.

So, that’s my favourite dish. What’s yours?

The History of Pizza

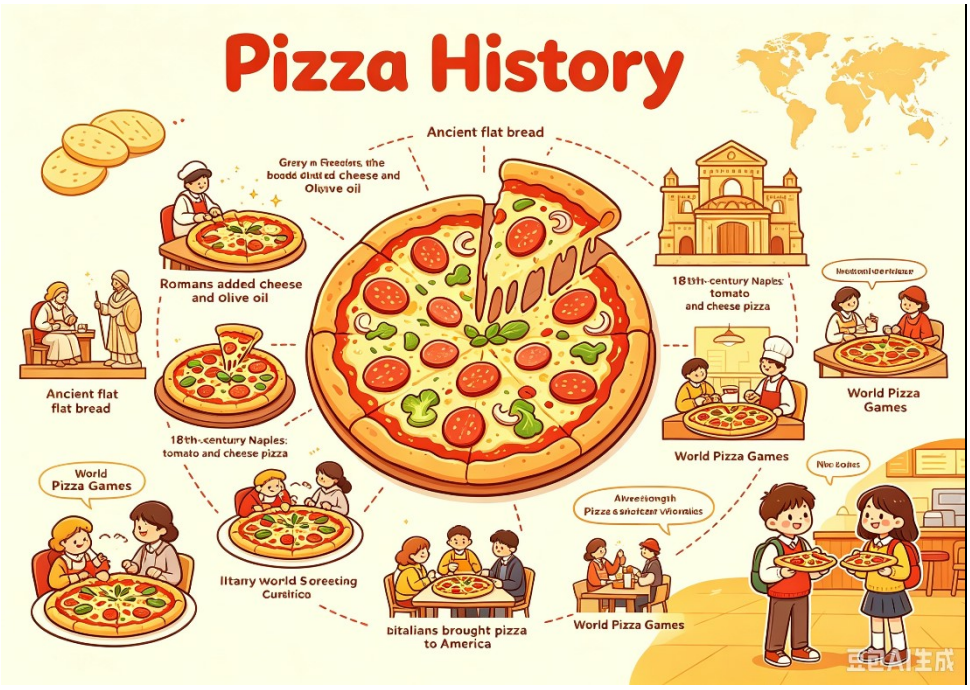

Do you know pizza is one of the most popular fast foods in the world? In fact, around the world, people eat 5 billion pizzas every year! But where did pizza come from and what makes it so popular? Read on to find out.

Thousands of years ago, the Greeks, Italians, and Persians started putting vegetables, oil, cheese, and other things on flat bread. The ingredients depended on the area, but there was one thing in common: Everyone put the toppings on some type of bread. This was the ancient form of "pizza".

Our modern pizza goes back to the Romans more than 2,000 years ago. They put cheese and olive oil on bread. In the 1700s, a pizza with tomato sauce and cheese became popular in Naples, Italy. Later, Italians brought the pizza to America, and then it became a popular food all over the world, with different pizzas from different places.

Photographs of movie stars and famous athletes with pizza helped it become more and more popular, and that led to competitions. Today, we have the World Pizza Games. There are also all kinds of world records. For example, in 2017, there was a new record for the world's longest pizza. It was over 1.9 kilometres long!

Today, pizza is popular all over the world, and different places have their own local pizzas. So do you like eating or cooking pizza? What is your favourite pizza style?

Tips on Summary Writing

Summary writing is a common writing task in English exams. You are given a passage, and you need to retell its core information in your own words. When you write freely, you can add personal ideas and detailed descriptions. But for summary writing, you need to stay true to the original text, keep its objective tone, and produce a brief and complete summary. Here are some steps for summary writing:

- Read the given part of story twice:

1) First read for general understanding. Second read for main ideas and key supporting points.

2) Note the theme, main characters, major events and the author's core opinion. Ignore unimportant examples, repetitions and minor details.

- Plan for 3-5 minutes: Figure out what information must be kept, what can be left out, and how to organize your points logically.
- Open with a topic sentence: Your opening sentence should state the central idea of the whole passage directly.
- Organize key points properly: Put related information together. Keep your summary concise. Do not copy long sentences word-for-word from the original text. Use your own expressions.
- End appropriately: Finish your summary completely. Do not leave out vital information.

Tips

Separate main ideas from minor details

Leave out specific examples, jokes, repeated statements and trivial descriptions. Only keep points that support the central theme. Do not turn your summary into a long copy of the original.

Rewrite instead of copying

Do not simply take sentences from the source text. Try to use synonyms, change sentence structures and rephrase ideas. Avoid adding your own personal opinions or comments.

UNIT 6 Plan for Yourself

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Adam: What are you reading, Fu Xing?

Fu Xing: It's a book of essays by a famous Chinese writer.

Adam: Wow, now I know why you're so good at writing.

Fu Xing: Thanks! You know, I want to be a writer when I'm older.

Adam: Really? How do you plan to do that?

Fu Xing: I'm going to read more classics. And also, I'm going to keep on writing stories and essays.

Adam: Your plan sounds wonderful! I think you're going to be a great writer.

Fu Xing: I hope so! What about you, Adam? What do you want to be when you're older?

Adam: My parents want me to be a doctor, but I'm not sure about that.

Fu Xing: Well, don't worry. Not everyone knows what they want to be. Just make sure you try your best at school. Then you can do anything you want!

Adam: Yeah, you're right.

Passage 1

Do you know what a resolution is? A resolution is a promise that you make to yourself. People make resolutions to improve their life. The most common kind is a New Year's resolution.

Resolutions can be about anything. Some are about physical health. For example, some people may promise to exercise more or eat more healthily. People might decide they are going to take up a hobby, like painting or photography. And some resolutions have to do with self-improvement, like becoming more confident or organized.

Although there are differences, most resolutions have one thing in common: people hardly ever keep them! But there are good reasons for this. Sometimes the resolutions may be too difficult to keep. And sometimes people just forget about them.

To make your resolutions work, you need to plan them wisely. Always make sure your resolution is possible to achieve. Don't set a goal that is too difficult or too much for you.

LGPL Free as in Freedom

And if you don't want to forget your resolutions, write them down. Also, talk about them with your family and friends. Encourage them to remind you of your goals. So what resolutions are you going to make? How are you going to keep them?

Passage 2

New Year, New Me

As the year draws to a close, it is the perfect time to think about the changes we want to make in the coming new year. We can improve our lives by learning something new, forming good habits, working harder at something, or even improving our relationships with others. I hope to make next year better than this one, so I am going to make three resolutions.

The first one is about taking up a new hobby. I am going to join the school music club to improve my singing! I think singing is a great activity. And my friends and family all love my singing.

I am also going to get fitter. Besides jogging, I am going to do push ups and sit ups. I feel energetic after I exercise. I'm sure I'm going to be a healthier and happier person.

Last but not least, my English isn't good enough, so I am going to study for two more hours each weekend. It might be hard, but I am going to get a lot better at English!

Passage 3

The Ant and the Grasshopper

(Adapted from Aesop's Fables)

It was summertime. The ant and the grasshopper were in the farmer's field. The ant was busy collecting corn. The grasshopper was relaxing in the sun.

"Hey, Ant, come sit with me," said the grasshopper.

"No, thanks," said the ant. "I have to take this corn home. I'm preparing for the winter."

A few weeks later, summer was almost at an end. The ant continued to take corn home every day, but the grasshopper just played his violin and danced around.

"Come on, Ant!" said the grasshopper. "Dance with me!"

"No," replied the ant. "I'm going to get more corn. Why don't you join me? You should plan for the winter."

"But the winter is so far away! Your work looks so boring! Come with me! Let's have a picnic!"

"No, thanks, Grasshopper. I'm going to continue with my boring work."

The grasshopper was silent for a while, but then he happily danced away.

The ant looked tired, but she felt happy when she saw all the food in her kitchen.

The autumn arrived and the weather became cool and windy. The grasshopper ran around the farm singing songs. The poor ant had to fight her way through the wind. She wanted to collect lots of wood.

"Ant, it's too windy to work!" said the grasshopper. "Come and sing with me!"

"No, thanks, Grasshopper. There's just a little bit more work for me to do. I want to be warm in the winter."

And then the cold winter came. The ant sat at home by her fire, enjoying some lovely corn soup. Then she heard a knock at the door.

"Oh, dear Ant," said the grasshopper, "you must help me! I have no food! And no fire to keep me warm!"

"Sorry, Grasshopper, you must learn to look after yourself. Keep dancing and singing through the winter, and work hard when spring comes!"

Joyce's Story of Time Management

Time management is the greatest challenge for me in high school. I have to balance my subjects, activities, social life, and rest. I often get into arguments with my family members just because I didn't plan my time well. For instance, I may yell at them for disturbing me when I'm working and I may blame them when I miss deadlines, even though it's actually my fault for cramming everything in at the last minute.There is one thing that I always make time for: watching TV. It's a way for me to relax. I think the best trick to deal with time management is the classic “break it into bits.” It's really important for you to learn how to break a big project into small, manageable tasks. Then you can work progressively and have a sense of achievement whenever you're done with a small part.Another trick is to devise a timetable for yourself. It doesn't have to be one that you follow faithfully. It's just there to serve as a guide. You can compare your actual schedule with the planned one to see how well you actually use your time. A final tip is to always set deadlines for yourself.

UNIT 7 When Tomorrow Comes

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation 1

Helen: Hi, Jennifer. What's up?

Jennifer: Oh, hi, Helen. I'm watching a video about future predictions.

Helen: So, what will the future be like?

Jennifer: Well, there will be more people in cities, but the transport system will be more efficient. It means that there will be fewer traffic accidents.

Helen: Sounds great! Any other predictions?

Jennifer: Students probably won't go to a school in the future. They will study at home or any place they want.

Helen: Oh, but I really like going to school! Anything else?

Jennifer: And people will live longer.

Helen: Really? Why?

Jennifer: Because we'll have better health care technology in our homes. Machines will tell us how to solve small health problems before they become bigger.

Helen: That'll be great. How long will most people live?

Jennifer: Well, more people will live to be over 100 years old. Some may even live to be 150.

Helen: Wow, that sounds wonderful!

Guest: Good evening. Thank you, it's a pleasure to be here.

Host: Dr. Roberts, thank you for joining us. So, as a futurist, can you tell us how life will be different in 50 years?

Guest: Well, you'll see robots working everywhere.

LGPL Free as in Freedom

Host: Can you give us some examples?

Guest: Well, we'll have service robots. They will do almost all our housework. They will also help save lives when disasters and emergencies happen.

Host: So, what jobs will humans still do in the future?

Guest: Good question! Some jobs today will disappear in the coming years. However, there will be more challenging jobs in the future, such as space pilots and AI experts.

Host: Do you think robots will replace humans one day?

Guest: No, I don't. Our creativity and emotional intelligence are important for relationships. AI will not replace humans for these things.

Host: You mentioned AI. How will AI change our world?

Guest: It will change the world in many ways. For example, we won't need to go to the supermarket. Smart refrigerators will understand our needs. When we are almost out of some food, they will order it for us.

Host: Wow, that'll save us a lot of time! Now, my last question: How can we prepare for the future?

Guest: It's simple. Just accept change. Keep learning and working hard. Today's choices will influence your future.

Host: Thank you for your time, Dr. Roberts.

Passage 1

My Dreams for the Future

What will my life be like in 20 years? It’s not an easy question, but here are a few of my predictions. I love art, so I think I will become an artist. I want to study art in France, and then I will visit all the famous art museums. I will learn a lot about different artists and their works of art, and I will create my own too.

As an artist, I will live in the countryside and stay close to nature. There will be flowers and plants around my home. Life there will give me good ideas for making art. At the weekend, I will invite friends to drop in and have fun together. I believe these dreams will come true as long as I study hard and keep on trying.

Passage 2

Looking into the Future

Are you curious about the future? What do you think our life will be like in 50 years or more? To answer this, you can read a sci-fi book. Perhaps you will have some ideas then. Today, many young readers are interested in science fiction. But what makes it so popular?

For one thing, science fiction gives us a chance to imagine what our future will be like. Anything is possible. We can dream big. Some people think there will be flying cars and robot servants. Others believe we will learn more about strange aliens and other worlds.

Another reason is that sci-fi writers and their work can inspire us to create the future. In 1945, a sci-fi author named Arthur C. Clarke wrote about a system of space stations. In the article, he predicted the earth of the future would have many TV stations and people would send TV programmes around the world. However, this was before TV was a common item at home! In a short story by Clarke, he suggested people in the future would use a system to talk with others around the world. Amazingly, the short story was actually the inspiration for the internet!

Science fiction is also popular because it can make us think about our world in new ways. Although many sci-fi stories are set in imaginary worlds or societies, they can help us better understand the real world. They can also make us excited when we feel like we are living in a boring world.

What will the future be like? Sci-fi inspires us and helps us to understand what it could be like.

KS1 Future with be doing 现在进行表将来

We use the present continuous tense (be doing) for future arrangements. It describes future actions that have already been planned and arranged. It is often used with verbs of movement such as go, come, leave, arrive, fly, travel, etc.

已经安排、计划好的将来动作可以使用现在进行时表达，常与表示位移的动词，如 go, come, leave, arrive, fly, travel 等连用。

KS2 Simple Future Tense 一般将来时

The simple future tense describes an action that will happen after the present moment. It expresses future plans, predictions, assumptions, promises, and spontaneous decisions. Its basic structure is: S + will (not) + do + other elements. For Yes-No questions, put will before the subject. When the subject is first-person pronouns, i.e. I or we, we can use shall instead.

一般将来时描述发生在当前时刻之后的动作。它可用来表达将来的计划、预测、推测、承诺以及临时决定，其基本结构为：主语 + will (not) + 动词原形 + 其他，一般疑问句通过将 will 提前构成。当句子主语为第一人称代词，即 I 或 we 时，可使用 shall 替代。

Sentences formed with be going to / be about to / be doing can be expressed alternatively with will. However, sentences formed with will usually CANNOT be equivalently replaced by the above three structures because will often describes spontaneous on-the-spot decisions, promises or willingness; meanings which the other three forms cannot fully convey.

LGPL3 Free as in Freedom

含有 Be going to / Be about to 结构或由现在进行表将来的句子可由 will 构成的句子替代，但由于 will 还可包含当场临时决定、承诺或主观意愿等上述三种结构无法完成表达的语义，因此通常由 will 构成的句子不可用上述三种结构等价替代。

D Expanding Horizons

Dear Past Bingbing,

Hi, I'm Bingbing, your future self! I know that you are really worried about your future career, so I wanted to write this letter to put your mind at rest.

I'm sorry to say that you won't become a pilot as you wanted. In the future, large passenger airplanes will fly themselves and won't need pilots. But there is a big problem in the future that you don't know now: no one uses cars anymore—everyone uses personal jet packs. As you can imagine, the skies over the city get pretty busy! Someone needs to control all these people so they don't have accidents. And that's what you do: you're a jet pack air traffic controller.

One really good point about this job is that you don't have to leave home. Instead, you use a virtual reality headset and microphone to do your job while you are sitting on the sofa drinking tea. But you will have to work on your people skills, as you will be talking to people all day. The bad point? Too many jet packs in the sky! Sometimes it can be kind of noisy, and some people don't obey the rules or listen to what you say.

All in all, I think you'll be happy with this job. But of course you will, because you're me! Stop worrying! Your future is going to be great. Trust me.

Best regards,

Future Bingbing

UNIT 8 Let's Communicate!

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Jason: Professor, thanks for the helpful speech on communication. I have a question. Sometimes my friends and I argue but don't know how to make up. What's the best way to communicate in this situation?

Professor: If you want to solve the problem, a face-to-face talk usually works the best.

Jason: I understand, but meeting in person is not always easy.

Professor: If you can't meet, just call your friend. Some of you may prefer texting, but it takes longer and can make things worse if you're not careful with your words.

Jason: But what if we argue more over the phone?

Professor: If you stay calm and say sorry, it will help. If it is still hard to talk, take a break. Meet when you're both ready.

Jason: I'll call and try to meet. Because friendship is important. Thanks for the advice!

Professor: You're welcome.

Passage 1

How to Make a Better Conversation

Do you get nervous when you talk to someone? Do you find it hard to have a conversation with a stranger? If you have such worries, it is time for you to learn some more conversation skills. Here are some tips for making better conversations.

1. Listen carefully and show interest in others. One of the most important things is to listen to the person you speak to. If you are a good listener, you will find some good points to ask questions about. For example, if someone tells you their hobby and you can ask questions about it, they will surely be happy to continue the conversation.

2. Choose the right topic. Some of the best topics might be the weather, sports, music, films, food, or travel. However, it is impolite to ask someone's age, weight, or other personal information. Also, if you don't agree with others, don't argue with them. Just move on to another topic.

3. Be honest and sincere. If you have no idea of a subject, just say "I don't know much about it." If you want to make the other person happy, mention his or her strong points. But don't just pretend to be nice, because people can find out you are not telling the truth.

4. Pay attention to your body language. Sometimes it is just as important as your words. Don't be nervous. Stand up straight, smile, and be yourself—you have a lot to offer.

If you really work at it, you will find having conversations much easier.

Passage 2

Dear Professor Jones,

We would like to invite you to give a speech at our Education Talk event. The event will take place at 9 a.m. on 10th January. If you are able to attend the event, we will cover all your travel and hotel costs.

The event is an excellent opportunity for students, parents, and teachers to hear new opinions and ideas. If you can spare the time to give a speech on teenagers' communication skills, we are sure the students will benefit a lot from you.

We are looking forward to your reply. If you have any special needs, please let us know. It would be a great honour to have you speak at our school.

Yours sincerely,

Li Hua

Passage 3

How to Stay Safe Online

No matter whether you like it or not, social media is becoming a big part of many teenagers' lives. The internet is popular among young people in China. According to a survey by the Central Committee of the Communist Youth League, over 90 per cent of all Chinese minors use the internet and 50 per cent of these young people have made new friends online.

Social media allows people to connect with friends, share experiences, and stay on trend. However, the internet also has risks. It is important to stay safe while having fun online. Here are some simple tips.

First, if you have accounts on different apps, make sure you use strong passwords. Avoid using easy-to-guess information, like your birthday or your pet's name.

Second, be careful when you talk to strangers online. Not every person online is friendly or telling the truth about themselves. Don't share personal details, like your address, school name, or phone number.

Third, if you want to post anything online, think it over. Once it is out there, it is hard to know who sees it. Don't talk about things you may regret.

Lastly, keep your social media profiles private so only real friends can see your posts and information.

Remember, by following these tips, you can stay safe on social media and the internet. Your parents and teachers want the best for you. Be aware of the risks and protect yourself.

KS1 Zero Conditionals 第〇条件句

The zero conditional expresses results that are always true, generally true, or true as a normal consequence. It is common in scientific facts, instructions, habits, rules, and predictable outcomes. In plain terms, it means "whenever this happens, that happens." This is not about one future day but a broad statement about reality. For the zero conditional, the if-clause uses the present tenses and the main clause is either present tense or an imperative. In everyday English, the zero conditional appears in manuals, recipes, and workplace training.

第〇条件句用于表达恒成立、普遍成立，或是作为常规结果必然发生的情况。常用于科学事实、操作说明、习惯、规则以及可预判的结果。简单来说，第〇条件句表达"如果这件事发生，那么那件事就会发生"。即并非指将来某次的特定情况而是对客观事实的概括性陈述。第〇条件句的时间特点为包含 if 的分句为现在时，而主句也为现在时或祈使句。在日常英语中，第〇条件句常见于操作手册、食谱以及职场培训材料。

A practical way to test for the zero conditional is to replace "if" with "when" or "whenever." If the sentence still makes sense, zero conditional is often the right choice. It is not perfect in every case, but helps learners hear the idea of routine truth instead of just seeing a grammar formula.

检验一个句子是否为第〇条件句，可将 if 替换成 when 或者 whenever，替换后的语句如果仍旧通顺且意思完整，那么该句通常为第〇条件句。需要说明的是，这个方法并非总是行之有效，但有助于学习者理解"常规事实"这一概念并与第一条件句进行区分。

KS1 First Conditionals 第一条件句

The first conditional talks about a real and possible future situation and its likely result. The structure is: if + present simple, will + do. The speaker is not describing a general truth about all trains forever. The speaker is referring to one future event that may happen. The first conditional is common in plans, warnings, offers, promises, negotiations, and predictions based on evidence, or appears in service language and polite problem-solving.

LGPL3 Free as in Freedom

第一条件句描述真实且有可能发生的未来情况，以及它大概率会产生的结果。句型结构通常是：if + 一般现在时，will + 动词原形。说话人并不是在描述适用于所有火车的永恒普遍事实，而是指一件将来有可能发生的事情。第一条件句常用于计划、警告、主动提议、承诺、协商以及基于依据的预测，也会出现在服务用语及礼貌处理问题的场景。

UNIT 9 Time to Relax

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Fu Xing: Hi, Emma, how was your weekend?

Emma: It was OK, but now I hurt all over!

Fu Xing: How come?

Emma: I went to the sports centre to try ice skating. People looked so beautiful doing it! But I didn't expect to fall so many times!

Fu Xing: Oh dear!

Emma: I don't want to go ice skating again.

Fu Xing: Why? Nobody expects you to be perfect from the start.

Emma: My instructor said that too. She also encouraged me to get back up whenever I fell. She told me not to give up so easily.

Fu Xing: Everything's difficult before it's easy. Like swimming. I love it now, but I used to be scared of water.

Emma: Really?

Fu Xing: Yes. I started swimming to get over my fear. Slowly, I became more confident. I have fun being in the water now!

Emma: You're right. I'll try ice skating again!

Passage 1

Hobbies That Are Good for You

When work or school is over, what do you do to pass the time? Do you spend time on your hobbies? Reading or listening to music can help us to calm down after a busy day. Physical hobbies, such as playing tennis or doing yoga, can help us to keep fit. And some hobbies are creative. For example, people sometimes paint pictures to remember a beautiful landscape or object, or reduce stress.

Luca Bruno likes to be creative in his free time. But he doesn't make art or write stories. Instead, this Italian teenager finds it fun to make mobile phone apps. He thinks that apps can be a great way to help people. He started programming when he was ten, after he read about famous businessmen who started out as programmers. His latest app allows people around the world to find study partners for learning Italian. They can learn Italian and make friends at the same time!

"It gives me such a sense of achievement to see people using the app," says Luca. "I believe I'm helping people around the world to learn Italian!"

Some people prefer not to make things. They prefer to collect them! In India, Maya Badal doesn't collect coins or stamps. Instead, this teenage girl collects postcards!

"I know some people think postcards are rather old-fashioned, but I think they're a good way to learn about different places," Maya says. "I think it's interesting to see the beautiful buildings and landscapes in foreign countries."

Maya's first postcard shows the Mogao Caves in Dunhuang. Her dad sent it to her when she was five, and she liked it so much that she put it up on her bedroom wall! Now there are over one hundred postcards from thirty-two countries on Maya's walls. She dreams of travelling to these places in the future!

Passage 2

Jason (UK): Hi, everyone! I'd like to take up a new free time activity, and I'm hoping to get some ideas. What do you do? Why do you like it? Please tell me more!

Shuyin (China): I have many free time activities, like painting, writing poems, and reading. But my favourite free time activity is horse riding.

When I was six, I visited my grandfather's farm, and he took me to ride a horse. It was such an amazing experience! Now I ride my favourite horse, Nini, at his farm every weekend.

I love horse riding because I enjoy being in nature. Horse riding also helps me stay fit. But most importantly, it lets me spend time with Nini! She's my best friend. She's happy to see me whenever I visit, especially when I bring her some carrots for a snack! I'm lucky to have her in my life."

Passage 3

Work Hard, Play Hard

It can be hard to make time for a hobby when we have many important things to do. But hobbies might be more important than you think.

Physical hobbies like going hiking or playing tennis can help you to stay healthy. They keep you fit, and they can even lower stress and improve your memory and concentration. Other types of hobbies can also keep us healthy. Some scientists believe that making music can lower our blood pressure and make our body stronger. This makes it harder for us to fall sick. Playing an instrument also keeps our brains young. So, if you think that playing the guitar is a waste of time, remember that this hobby is actually a great way to stay healthy!

Hobbies are also good for your emotional well-being. Creative hobbies like painting or writing can help you deal with negative emotions by giving you a way to express how you feel. They can even make you feel good about yourself! In one study, after just 45 minutes of making art, most of the participants reported feeling more confident in themselves!

However, while hobbies have many benefits, it is important to find the right balance. Playing computer games or chatting online may be fun, but such hobbies usually involve a lot of screen time. That could cause problems such as eye strain or poor sleep. These activities are also usually done alone, and that could cause some people to feel lonely. Why not choose an outdoor hobby instead? Fresh air, green spaces, peace and quiet—these things help us to relax and feel good. And if you go hiking or fly a kite in the park, you can take a friend with you! Hanging out with friends reduces loneliness and can be a good way to build relationships.

Regardless of what your hobby is, it is important to make time for it. After all, all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy!

1. He came to see me.
2. She wants to join the music club.
3. My parents ask me to keep healthy.
4. We are glad to hear the good news.
5. The teacher tells us not to be late for class.

KS1 Infinitives (to do) as Adverbials 不定式（to do）作状语

An infinitive (to do) is a non-finite verb form, meaning it does not show tense or agree with a subject. It allows a verb to express an action in a general sense rather than a specific instance.

动词不定式是一种非谓语动词形式，它不体现时态，也不与主语保持人称和数的一致，可以让动词表达泛指的动作而非某一个特定发生的动作。

Infinitives can modify verbs by answering questions such as why, for what purpose, or with what result. When they do this, they are functioning adverbially. To identify an adverbial infinitive, you can replace to with in order to. If the to can be replaced with in order to without changing the meaning, the infinitive is adverbial.

动词不定式可以修饰动词，用于表达为什么、出于何种目的、带来什么结果的含义，此时，动词不定式在句中充当状语。区分动词不定式是否为状语的方法是将 to 替换为 in order to，如果可以被替代且句意一致，那么该不定式在句中就是状语。

KS2 Infinitives (to do) as Objects 不定式（to do）作宾语

Infinitives can function as the objects of verbs, often completing the meaning of the verb.

动词不定式可以充当动词的宾语，补足动词的语义。

There are some verbs that must take an infinitive as their object, including: want, hope, wish, offer, fail, plan, learn, promise, refuse, manage, afford, agree, arrange, ask, decide, choose, prefer, determine, expect, fear, prepare, pretend, etc.

有一部分动词后面必须接不定式作宾语，包括但不限于：want, hope, wish, offer, fail, plan, learn, promise, refuse, manage, afford, agree, arrange, ask, decide, choose, prefer, determine, expect, fear, prepare, pretend。

LGPL3 Free as in Freedom

KS3 Infinitives (to do) as Object Complements 不定式（to do）作宾语补足语

Some verbs, like advise, allow, ask, bear, beg, cause, command, drive, encourage, force, get, hate, help, intend, invite, leave, mean, need, order, prefer, request, teach, tell, train, want, wish, etc., can be followed by a noun or pronoun plus an infinitive to form the accusative-with-infinitive construction, in which the infinitive acts as an object complement.

有些动词如：advise, allow, ask, bear, beg, cause, command, drive, encourage, force, get, hate, help, intend, invite, leave, mean, need, order, prefer, request, teach, tell, train, want, wish 等后可接名词或代词再加动词不定式，构成宾补结构，在此结构中，不定式充当宾语补足语。

Some verbs, known as sense verbs and causative verbs, take bare infinitives (to do without to) as their object complements, including: see, hear, feel, watch, make, let, have, etc.

某些动词，称作感官动词和使役动词，后接不带 to 的不定式作宾语补足语，包括但不限于：see, hear, feel, watch, make, let, have。

Poems about Work & Rest

Work while you work
Play while you play;
One thing each time,
That is the way.

All that you do,
Do with your might;
Things done by halves
Are not done right.

What is this life if, full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare.
No time to stand beneath the boughs
And stare as long as sheep or cows.
No time to see, when woods we pass,
Where squirrels hide their nuts in grass.
No time to see, in broad daylight,
Streams full of stars, like skies at night.

No time to turn at Beauty's glance,
And watch her feet, how they can dance.
No time to wait till her mouth can
Enrich that smile her eyes began.
A poor life this is if, full of care,
We have no time to stand and stare.

Proverbs about Work & Rest

- All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.
- Work while you work, play while you play.
- Rest is a good thing, but boredom is its brother.
- Sharpening the axe will not delay the cutting of wood.
- He who knows how to rest knows how to work.

UNIT 10 Stay Healthy

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Doctor: Take a seat, Helen. How are you feeling?

Helen: Not good … I have a runny nose and a fever.

Doctor: Let me take your temperature … Oh, it's quite high.

Helen: Yes, it started yesterday. I felt so cold, and I didn't have much energy. When I tried to get out of bed, I almost fell and hurt myself. My throat hurts too.

Doctor: Let's see. Yes, the back of your throat looks very red. We'll need to do a test, but I believe you have the flu. It's flu season.

Helen: What should I do, Doctor?

Doctor: You should take some medicine and drink enough water.

Helen: OK, thank you. Can I go to school tomorrow?

Doctor: No, you should rest at home. When you're outside, please wear a mask. It stops us from passing the flu virus to others easily.

Helen: I will!

Doctor: And remember, your health is in your hands. If you take good care of yourself, you'll get better soon.

Passage 1

A Cooking Accident

James lived in the city with his friend Allen. It was their first time living away from their families, and they enjoyed learning how to do many things themselves.

One Saturday, James decided to make fried chicken. First, he poured oil into a pan. Then he turned on the stove and left the oil to heat while he prepared the chicken. Just then, he heard the front door open, followed by the sound of Allen singing.

"Guess what," Allen called out happily. "We won!"

"No way!" James followed him into the living room. He wanted to hear all about the football game! Suddenly, Allen stopped talking and looked up. "Hey, do you smell something burning?"

"Oh no!"

They both rushed back into the kitchen. The pan was on fire! Large flames were jumping into the air. In a panic, James turned off the stove at once. But he was so close to the pan that a flame jumped onto his shirt. James cried out and threw himself to the floor. He put out the fire by rolling on the ground, but the pan was still burning!

"Get water, quick!" he shouted.

Allen was about to do so when he stopped short. Thanks to the first aid and safety classes he took at school, he knew that water could make oil fires much worse! Instead, he rushed to get the fire extinguisher. In seconds, the fire in the burning pan was put out.

"Are you OK?" Allen asked his friend.

"I think so," James said. It was lucky that his shirt wasn't too thin! His arm was red, but it didn't hurt very much.

"Maybe we should eat out tonight," James said as he ran cool water over his arm.

"Sure, we could do that. What do you want?"

"Anything but fried chicken," he said sadly.

Passage 2

One Saturday, Julie invited Mark and Lucy to her house for lunch. Her parents weren't home, so they had it all to themselves. They ordered pizza, salad, and juice. But in the middle of the meal, Mark started to feel strange. His face felt warm, and his throat felt tight.

"Were there any peanuts in our food?" he asked nervously.

"I think I tasted peanuts in the salad," said Julie. "What's the matter?"

"Oh no, I'm allergic to peanuts!" Mark cried. His friends jumped into action and took him to the hospital at once.

At the hospital, Mark's friends told Dr Cooper what happened, and she gave Mark some medicine right away. When Mark felt better, the doctor asked him some questions and gave him some advice.

"I'll take better care of myself from now on," Mark promised. It was a day he would never forget.

Passage 3

All about Sneezing

If you had to list different ways of protecting yourself, sneezing probably would not be on the list. But when you sneeze, that is exactly what is happening. Sneezing helps you protect yourself from things like germs, dust, and smoke. In fact, it is the body's way of getting rid of things that may harm you.

People cannot really control their sneezes. If something starts tickling the inside of our nose, our brain takes over. It knows that something inside the nose should not be there, so it sends a message to the body to get it out.

When we sneeze, many things happen in a very short time. Usually, our eyes shut, our tongue presses against the top of our mouth, and the muscles in our stomach and chest get tight. Next, a sudden blast of air comes out of our lungs and then our nose. As the air goes out of our nose, it carries germs, dust, and tiny drops of water with it.

Some unusual things can also make us sneeze. For example, some people sneeze when they look at a bright light. If people have an allergy, certain plants or animals might also make them sneeze. If they are allergic to certain plants, they might sneeze a lot in the seasons when the plants bloom, but not in others. If they are allergic to dogs or cats, they usually cannot have one as a pet.

While sneezing is good for the person doing it, it can be very bad for the people nearby. Sneezing is one way that diseases spread. Millions of germs from one sneeze can travel up to about 8 metres at a speed of 160 kilometres per hour! These germs can stay in the air, and if other people breathe in those germs, they can get sick too.

If you sneeze, always cover your nose and mouth. After that, make sure to wash your hands. Sneezing helps your body protect itself, but doing these two things can help you protect everyone else!

KS2 Reflexive Pronouns 反身代词

Reflexive pronouns are words ending in -self (singular) or -selves (plural) that refer back to the subject of the sentence, showing that the person or thing performing the action is also receiving it. The nine Standard English reflexive pronouns are: myself, yourself, himself, herself, itself, oneself, ourselves, yourselves, and themselves.

LGPL3 Free as in Freedom

反身代词是以 -self（单数）或 -selves（复数）结尾的词，用来指代句子的主语，表示动作的发出者同时也是该动作的承受者。标准英语中九个反身代词为：myself, yourself, himself, herself, itself, oneself, ourselves, yourselves, themselves。

Reflexive pronouns can act as the direct object of a verb when the subject performs the action on itself. They can also indicate for whom the action is done.

当主语把动作施加于自身时，反身代词可以充当动词的直接宾语。它们也可以表示动作是为谁而做。

Reflexive pronouns are used as objects of prepositions when the action reflects back on the subject.

当动作作用回主语本身时，反身代词可作介词的宾语。

Reflexive pronouns can emphasize the subject without changing the meaning of the sentence.

反身代词可以对主语进行强调，而不会改变句子的原意。

Some verbs change meaning when used with reflexive pronouns, for example behave oneself, help yourself.

部分动词与反身代词连用时，词义会发生改变，例如：举止规矩（behave oneself）和请自便（help yourself）。

Going Positive

I always wanted to look like the slim girls on TV even though I knew that it was impossible. I worried about my weight and tried every new diet I read about online. I tried no-fat, low-fat, 5:2, only bananas, no bananas—I almost went bananas, too.

Then I read an article that said instead of asking “Am I fat?” I should be asking “Am I fit?” I had no idea a letter could make such a difference! Once I started thinking about fitness rather than weight, things began to change. Instead of saying “I want to lose three kilos”, I would say “I want to run two kilometres in eight minutes” or “I want to be able to do 30 push-ups”. Rather than cutting out the foods I enjoyed, I added healthy foods to my meals. I could still have a burger now and then, but I would add a salad or an apple.

Finally, I stopped comparing myself with actresses and models and looking for things that were wrong with my face or body. Instead, I made a list of the things I liked about myself. By being positive about myself and my body, I became both happier and healthier.

UNIT 11 Growing Up

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Lily: What's wrong, Judy?

Judy: Well, my parents aren't happy with my grades.

Lily: Really? Weren't they pretty good this term?

Judy: Yeah, but my parents have very high standards. They often compare me with my cousin, Kate. She gets better grades, plays the piano well, often wins awards …

Lily: I'm sorry to hear that. But look on the bright side. I'm sure your parents just want you to do well, although they may not show it.

Judy: I know my parents love me, but sometimes I think they love Kate more.

Lily: Why don't you talk to them? Until you talk to them, they might not know how you feel.

Judy: I'm afraid I'll cry if we talk.

Lily: How about writing them a letter so that you can get your message across clearly?

Judy: Oh, that's a good idea.

Lily: Writing things down can also make you feel better.

Judy: Thanks! Just talking to you makes me feel better already!

Passage 1

You Can't Win Them All

When the bell rang, Matt entered the classroom with a heavy heart. "Hey, Matt," his best friend Tom greeted him. He and Tom were in the school's basketball team. "Why the long face? Are you still feeling blue about Saturday night's game?" Tom asked.

"Of course I am," Matt said quietly. He didn't dare to look at Tom as he spoke. "I'm really sorry about letting everybody down. The other team got those points because of me."

"Don't be too hard on yourself!" Tom said. "Although you pushed their player, it was just an accident. Everyone knows that!"

LGPL 3 Free as in Freedom

Tom was a good friend. But Matt knew the referee didn't share Tom's opinion. When the referee saw Matt push another player, he gave the other team two free throws. Matt was as shocked as anyone else when the accident happened, but it was too late. He couldn't take it back.

"I guess we have to respect his decision," Matt said after a while. "But we had a good chance to win until I made that mistake. Why wasn't I more careful?"

"Listen, Matt," said Tom, "try to look on the bright side. The other team is the best in our area, but our scores were really close. I'm proud of us, and I know our coach and everyone else in our school are as well."

Matt felt a bit better. "Thanks, Tom. I guess it's just hard to lose."

"Hey, you can't win them all," said Tom. "It's more important to learn from your mistakes so that you don't repeat them in future. We'll keep working together as a team. One for all, and all for one, right?"

"You're right. If we pull together, we should win next time," Matt smiled. He was lucky to have a friend like Tom!

Passage 2

Dear Mrs. Thompson,

I want to thank you for being my teacher. You took the time to help me, although you were so busy.

Your classes always made me happy. I used to think that science was boring and difficult, and I did badly in class. I never liked science until I took your class. You encouraged me and made science lessons fun, and slowly, I grew more confident.

I also want to thank you for being kind to me. You helped me a lot, especially after my grandmother passed away. I couldn’t talk about my feelings to anybody until you sat with me during lunch that day. You listened to me and talked with me so that I felt much better. That day will always remain in my mind. Thank you so much for being not only my teacher but also my friend.

Sincerely,

Kelly Smith

Passage 3

Laughter Is the Best Medicine

Do you often laugh with friends? Do you giggle at jokes? If you do, that is great, because just as the saying goes: Laughter is the best medicine!

People start laughing from a young age. At around three months old, babies learn to laugh. Even babies that cannot see or hear can laugh. Laughter is a natural part of life! But why is it so important?

First of all, laughter is good for our body. When we laugh, our body takes in more oxygen. Every part of our body needs oxygen to work well. Laughter also makes our body work out. Our heart, stomach, and even our shoulders work hard when we laugh! But after we laugh, our muscles feel more relaxed. A good laugh can help you feel relaxed for up to 45 minutes. Over time, laughter helps our body to get stronger, fight off more diseases, and even create special chemicals to help us feel less pain!

Laughter also has many benefits for our mood. When we laugh, it makes us feel less stressed or anxious, and things will not seem so bad. Laughing also causes our brain to release chemicals that make us feel calm and happy. Scientists even think that smiling often is enough to increase these chemicals in our brain.

But it is not always easy to laugh on our own. We are 30 times more likely to laugh when we are around others. According to some scientists, laughter can show others that we want to be close to them. Monkeys clean one another's fur to show friendship. But people laugh so that others will know that they are being friendly.

Some people even join laughing groups. Although they force themselves to laugh at first, after hearing other people laugh, their laughter becomes real! Before long, the whole group of people is laughing hard.

The next time you feel unhappy, try thinking about something funny. Although you might not want to laugh when you are sad, doing so can make you feel better!

KS Conjunctions (although / though, until, so that)

连词 (although / though, until, so that)

We use although or though to introduce a contrast. It shows that something happens in spite of a different fact. We CANNOT use but together with although in one sentence. Although introduces adverbial clauses of concession that usually state facts rather than guesses. Although is preferred when the clause comes at the beginning of a sentence.

我们使用 although 或者 though 引导让步关系，表示尽管存在某种情况，另一件事依旧发生。Although 和 but 不能同时用于同一个句子中。Although 引导的让步状语从句常常叙述事实而不表示猜测。在句首时，多用 although。

We use until to talk about time. It means "up to the time when something happens". It describe when an action stops. We use not … until to express an action or event starts only after a certain point in time. Generally, the verb used here emphasizes an instantaneous or short-lived action.

我们使用 until 谈论时间，意为"直到…为止"，描述某个动作一直持续，直到某个时间点才停止。我们使用 not…until 表达某个动作或事件直到某个特定时间点之后才开始，意为"直到…才"，被描述的动作一般为瞬时或短暂性的。

LGPL3 Free as in Freedom

We use so that to introduce purpose. The part after so that tells the aim of the action in the first part of the sentence.

我们使用 so that 引导目的状语，其后的分句说明主句动作想要达成的目的。

Tips on Writing a Narrative Essay

The purpose of the narrative essay is to tell a complete personal or fictional story in a vivid way. Focusing on plots, characters and feelings, these essays recreate an experience using detailed descriptions. They show the writer's personal feelings and reflections on the event. Here are some steps to write this kind of essay:

➢ Prewriting:

1) Spend some time recalling the story, including its setting, characters and key events.

2) Pick out important scenes and write down key details about actions and feelings.

3) Make a simple plan. It shows what you will write in each paragraph, and put story events in a clear time order.

➢ Drafting: The essay follows the basic structure below:

· Paragraph 1: Opening. Set the scene and introduce main characters. Add background information to draw readers into your story.

· Paragraph 2: Body, beginning of the story — the setup of the event (why).

· Paragraph 3: Body, rising action — difficulties, conflicts and turning points.

· Paragraph 4: Body, climax — the most exciting or important moment of the story.

· Paragraph 5: Ending. Finish the story and share your personal thoughts or lessons learned from the experience.

➢ Revising: Read your draft several times and ask yourself these questions:

1) Is the story complete? Are the events arranged in proper order? Do you use lively details to show characters' feelings?

2) Can readers easily and clearly follow what happens in the story?

3) Do not write off-topic ideas. Stay focused on your story and do not add useless details.

4) Can readers move smoothly from one scene or paragraph to the next?

➢ Editing: Check your essay carefully. Fix all grammar and spelling mistakes. Also, change your sentences to make your writing more vivid and easier to understand.

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Yaming: Welcome back, Ella! How was your trip?

Ella: It was great! We saw the Hukou Waterfall on the Yellow River. Is that the longest river in China?

Yaming: No, the Yangtze River is the longest river in China. It travels the farthest and is about 6,300 kilometres long. The Yellow River is 5,464 kilometres long and is the second longest. By the way, do you know why it's called the Yellow River?

Ella: Because it's yellow?

Yaming: Right. Some parts of the river carry brown and yellow earth.

Ella: That's interesting! I like learning about rivers. My favourite is the Nile. Did you know it's the longest river in the world?

Yaming: Yes, it's 6,671 kilometres long. It's very important in Egypt's history.

Ella: That's right. Both the Nile and the Yellow River helped ancient civilizations to develop. And they're still very important today.

Yaming: Yes. In China, we even call the Yellow River our "mother river"!

Ella: We should protect them at all costs.

Passage 1

Reaching New Heights

To most people, Mount Qomolangma is one of the greatest wonders of the world. On the highest place on earth, you will feel like you are able to touch the sky. But only the best climbers reach the top, and that is only if they survive the terrible conditions first. On the mountain, temperatures can fall to –30 ℃. Climbers must also deal with thin air, high cliffs, and changeable weather.

Before 1960, no one was able to reach the top of Qomolangma from the northern side. Mountain climbers even called that way the "Death Road", but a Chinese climbing team was determined to make the climb.

On 24 May 1960, climbers Liu Lianman, Wang Fuzhou, Qu Yinhua, and Gongbu arrived at the Second Step. It was 8,600 metres above sea level. People said it was so high that even birds could not reach it. Liu allowed his teammates to step on his shoulders. Bit by bit, the climbers pulled themselves up, and they made it past the Second Step. At 4:20 a.m. on 25 May, the Chinese national flag flew above the world's highest mountain for the first time.

In 1975, another Chinese team climbed to the top of Qomolangma to do research. This time, they brought a ladder to the Second Step. Until 2007, almost all climbers from the northern side used this "Chinese Ladder" to reach the top much faster. In 2020, a Chinese research team went to Qomolangma to measure its height—8,848.86 metres.

Climbing Qomolangma is dangerous. Some climbers reach the top successfully, but many fail. Why do people still risk their lives to climb the highest mountain in the world? It is because human curiosity and ambition cannot be stopped. Or, as the English explorer George Mallory put it, it is simply "because it's there"!

Passage 2

The Great Barrier Reef: An Amazing Underwater World

Do you love the ocean? Do you want to visit one of the natural wonders of the world? If so, visit the Great Barrier Reef!

Located on the northeastern coast of Australia, the Great Barrier Reef is one of the most amazing places to visit. It is the biggest coral reef in the world. It takes up an area of 345,000 square kilometres and includes many islands and white sand beaches.

The Great Barrier Reef is also alive! If you visit it, you will see the largest living structure on earth. Here, you can swim or dive in the clear water and see coral, plants, and colourful fish. If you dive deeper, you might even see large fish, turtles, and sharks. For people who love the ocean, visiting the Great Barrier Reef is the dream of a lifetime!

Passage 3

The Sahara Desert

Located in Africa, the Sahara Desert spreads across 30 per cent of the continent. This vast desert, also known as "the great desert" in Arabic, is about 9 million square kilometres in size. It is also at least 4.6 million years old. This means that it is one of the oldest places in the world.

All deserts are dry, and the Sahara is both dry and hot. It is the largest hot desert in the world. We may think that all deserts are hot, but in fact some deserts are very cold! Many scientists believe that Antarctica, for example, is a type of cold desert.

Most of the Sahara is rocky ground. But there are also places with grass, lakes, mountains, and even sand seas. A sand sea is just what it sounds like—it looks like a sea of sand! When the wind blows, the sand looks like waves.

Life in the Sahara is difficult. About two million people live in the Sahara. They usually move from place to place. There is water in a few parts of the Sahara, and some people live in these places all year round.

Not many animals can live in a place with such a dry and hot climate. They must adapt to survive. Camels, for example, go for a long time without drinking water. When they do find water, they can drink more than 100 litres of it in 13 minutes! Fennec foxes live in the desert too. They have large ears to help their bodies stay cool.

Today, the world's largest hot desert is getting even bigger. It is now about 10 per cent larger than it was about a century ago. But why is it growing? Some scientists believe that part of the reason is climate change. As temperatures rise, summers in Africa grow hotter and less rain falls. Water bodies get smaller and the ground gets drier and drier. If we do not take effective measures, the desert will keep growing!

Read, Discuss and Think

1. What's the date today? It's October the fourth, twenty twenty-six.
2. What day is it today? It's Sunday.

KS1 How to Express Date 日期表示法

The Wh- question what's the date today asks for the calendar date. It is used to find out which date it is. The Wh- question what day is it today asks for the day of the week. It is used to find out which weekday it is.

英语中，特殊疑问句 What's the date today 用于询问日期，即几月几日，而 What day is it today 用于询问星期，即星期几。

In the UK and most Commonwealth countries, date are written in the Day-Month-Year format, while in the US, the Month-Day-Year format is used. However, the International Standard "YYYY-MM-DD" (ISO 8601) is highly recommended for formal documents, business, and computing to avoid ambiguity.

在英国及大多数英联邦国家，采用"日-月-年"的格式来书写日期，而在美国则采用"月-日-年"。为消除歧义，在正式文件、商务场景和计算机科学相关领域中，强烈推荐采用"年（4 位数字）-月（2 位数字）-日（2 位数字）"（ISO 8601）格式记录日期。

When describing dates of the Gregorian calendar in spoken English, we use ordinal numbers for days and the names of the months for months. Years are often read in two-digit pairs. However, when there is a placeholder zero in the last two digits, the digit 0 is pronounced as the letter "O". When describing dates from other calendars, such as the Chinese lunar calendar, ordinal numbers are used for both days and months. Years in the Gregorian calendar follow the same expression rules.

在口语中描述公历日期时，我们使用序数词来表达日，使用各月份名称来表达月。年份通常按两位一组来读，但当最后两位中有占位的 0 时，数字 0 读作"O"。在描述其他历法，如农历日期时，使用序数词来表达日和月。采用公历纪年的年份表示法和公历相同。

Conversation

Haitao: Hi, Lisa. Did your family have any trouble during the typhoon?

Lisa: Yes, it was awful.

Haitao: I'm sorry to hear that. Did you know that a typhoon was coming?

Lisa: We did. But it was worse than we expected. We were driving home from our relatives' house when the strong winds started.

Haitao: Oh no! It's dangerous to travel during a typhoon.

Lisa: I know. It was raining hard while we were driving back. We almost got into an accident when a truck nearly hit us.

Haitao: Oh dear, I'm glad you were safe!

Lisa: Yes, but when we got home later, we found water everywhere. The house looked awful! Was yours OK?

Haitao: Yes. Luckily, we covered our windows and moved our things off the floor before the typhoon started. We stored food and water too.

Lisa: That's good! We'll do that next time.

Passage 1

How One Girl Saved Many Lives

On 26th December 2004, Tilly Smith, a 10-year-old English schoolgirl, and her family were on holiday in Phuket, Thailand. Everyone was enjoying the beautiful weather that morning. Some people were swimming in the sea, and some were relaxing on the beach. But while Tilly was walking along the beach with her family, she noticed something strange. Thick white froth was forming on top of the waves. Next, she saw that the waves were coming in instead of going out.

Just then, she remembered something important. Two weeks before, her geography teacher had explained that earthquakes under the sea could create dangerous waves called tsunamis!

"I know what's going to happen! There's going to be a big wave," Tilly cried. Unfortunately, her family didn't believe her and wanted to continue their walk. However, Tilly refused to take a single step further. Finally, her mother decided to continue the walk alone, and the rest of her family returned to the hotel.

Back at the hotel, Tilly's father told a security guard about the tsunami. The security guard was shocked. He knew about the huge earthquake in nearby Indonesia. It meant that a tsunami was possible! He jumped into action right away and rushed to get people off the beach. Everyone began to panic. People were screaming and running as fast as they could when they saw a huge wall of water coming from the sea.

Tilly was right! Her mother was one of the last people on the beach, but thankfully, her family made it to safety just as the water hit the hotel. The 2004 tsunami caused over 200,000 deaths, but no one on the beach died that day.

This true story shows how a single lesson could mean the difference between life and death. Thanks to her knowledge and quick thinking, one schoolgirl was able to save over 100 lives.

Passage 2

Fortitude in Adversity

China pulled together to save lives after a big earthquake hit the southwest of our country.

On the morning of May 14th, 2008, a strong aftershock shook Yingxiu Town in Wenchuan. Rocks fell down the hills. Some old broken houses fell down completely. Most places hit by the earthquake are in mountains. The broken roads made it hard for rescue teams to get in. They could not easily carry medicine, water, food and digging machines to people in need. The army worked hard to clear rocks on the roads to Wenchuan.

Soon, 100 Chinese soldiers jumped by plane into Maoxian. The town was cut off and hard to reach. People also dropped food and other help from planes to Wenchuan and Mianyang.

LGPL3 Free as in Freedom

The terrible earthquake in Sichuan shocked all Chinese people. But when we faced the great sadness, the whole country stood together. Our government started rescue work right away. Soldiers, doctors and volunteers hurried to the earthquake areas to save people. People all over China gave money and things to help the victims. Everyone tried their best.

Our country showed great courage. Rescue workers raced against time to find people alive from broken buildings. Many people waited in long lines to give their blood. Millions of people prayed for those hurt in the quake. We believed that if we worked together, we could get through this hard time.

Disasters test a nation's spirit. The earthquake brought pain and loss. But it also showed how strong we are when we unite. When people stand side by side, no problem is too big for us to beat.

Passage 3

Storm Chasing: A Dangerous but Important Job

Are you afraid of big storms? Many people are. But did you know some people go out to chase tornadoes? Such storms can hit suddenly and move very quickly, so storm chasers always have to be prepared.

When a tornado is about to hit, professional storm chasers try and get close to it to collect important information. Storm chaser Tim Samaras designed and built many different instruments for studying tornadoes. Throughout his career, the engineer chased down more than 120 tornadoes. Often, he filmed the storms while they were happening just a few kilometres away.

During a storm, storm chasers put special equipment in the way of the tornado. The equipment collects information about things such as wind speed and air pressure. This helps scientists to make better forecasts. It can even help people understand how powerful the winds can be, and as a result, change how we build our houses.

Storm chasing can be exciting, but also very dangerous. The storm chasers' knowledge and experience are not always enough to keep them safe. On 31 May 2013, Samaras and his team were chasing the El Reno tornado in Oklahoma, USA. To their surprise, the tornado behaved in an unexpected way. It grew rapidly and changed its speed and direction.

On that terrible day, the largest tornado ever recorded appeared. It was 4.2 kilometres wide and had winds topping 480 kilometres per hour. While the tornado was moving towards them, Samaras and his team were driving as fast as they could. Sadly, when the tornado hit their car, it threw their car into the air like a toy. All three men in the car died.

The story of Tim Samaras is very sad, but his work continues to play an important role in weather science. Though storm chasing remains a dangerous job, the goal of storm chasers is to learn more about storms to keep people safe. For people like Samaras, that goal makes it all worth it.

KS Past Continuous Tense 过去进行时

The past continuous tense describes an action that was in progress at a specific time in the past or set the background for another past action (often used with when). It emphasizes the ongoing state of an action in the past. The basic structure is: S + was/were (not) + v-ing + other elements.

过去进行时描述在过去某个特定时间正在进行的动作或为另一个过去动作铺垫背景（常和 when 连用），强调动作在过去的持续状态，其基本结构为：主语 + was/were (not) + 现在分词 + 其他。

Verbs used in past continuous tense are usually continuous verbs. Short-lived verbs CANNOT be used here.

本时态的动词一般为延续性动词，短暂性动词不能用于本时态。

The Night the Earth Didn't Sleep

Strange signs appeared in northeastern Hebei days before the Tangshan earthquake on 28 July 1976. Well water rose and fell, cracks appeared in well walls, and smelly gas escaped. Animals acted strangely: chickens and pigs refused to eat, mice fled fields and fish jumped out of water. Bright lights and loud noises were seen and heard before dawn, yet Tangshan's one million citizens slept as usual.

At 3:42 a.m., the earth shook violently. The deadly earthquake began 11 km below the city. It was felt across nearly one-third of China and damaged buildings as far as Beijing. A huge crack cut across houses and roads. Rock hills turned into dirt rivers. In under one minute, Tangshan lay in ruins. Over 400,000 people were killed or badly injured. Most factories, buildings, homes and hospitals were destroyed. Bricks covered the ground. Worse still, another big earthquake struck that afternoon. Survivors faced shortages of water, food and electricity.

However, hope remained. The army sent 150,000 soldiers to rescue trapped people and bury the dead. Thousands of medical workers arrived to offer care. Shelters were built for homeless survivors. Supplies were transported into the city. Slowly, Tangshan came back to life.

With government support and local people's hard work, a new city rose from the ruins. Now home to over seven million people, Tangshan shows that in disasters, unity and positive wisdom help people rebuild a brighter future.

Sam: What's wrong, Hongli?

Hongli: I'm having dinner at my friend's house tonight. But English table manners are so confusing that I'm a little worried.

Sam: Well, I'm from London. Ask me anything!

Hongli: Thanks! Well, first, should I bring something?

Sam: Yes. Bring a small gift, but don't bring food unless the host asks you to. And remember to wait for the host to start before you eat.

Hongli: Good to know! Could you tell me the proper way to use a knife and fork too?

Sam: Just hold the knife in your right hand, and the fork in your left. If you get confused, watch what everyone else does.

Hongli: OK. Anything else?

Sam: Hmm. After the meal, thank the host and say that everything was delicious. And, most importantly, enjoy yourself!

Hongli: Thanks, I will!

Passage 1

Hi Diana,

It's so great to hear from you. Life in Paris is pretty good! I was a little lonely at first, but I'm starting to make some friends. They helped me to learn more about the customs here after I had some embarrassing experiences at a party last month. I'd like to share some tips with you.

First, you shouldn't arrive early to a party. It's normal to be on time or a few minutes late, but arriving early can cause problems. Once, I arrived 10 minutes early to a party. Usually that's the polite thing to do, right? But my friend looked so surprised to see me! He was still getting everything ready.

LGPL Free as in Freedom

Second, it's important to bring a gift when you visit someone. When I attended my friend's party, I didn't bring anything. It wasn't his birthday, but everyone else brought gifts like chocolates or flowers to thank him for the party. I was so embarrassed!

Third, you should always try to dress for the occasion. At that party it was surprising to see how nicely everyone was dressed. It was summer, so I was just wearing a simple blouse and shorts. But everyone else was dressed so well that I felt silly.

Fourth, it's best not to ask personal questions unless you know the person well. Many French people are quite private. They don't like it when others ask them about their age, their family, whether they are married, or how much money they make. Food and culture, however, are safe conversation topics.

Last but not least, make sure you use French whenever you can. Lots of people speak English here, but you can develop closer relationships with them if you use French. It's very important in their culture. I found that even a simple "merci" goes a long way! You'll see what I mean as soon as you get here!

Au revoir!

Nancy

Passage 2

Hi Yaming,

One more week to go! I’m so excited to see you. I’ll meet the Zhaos as soon as I land in Shanghai. I’ll stay with their family for two weeks, and I’m a little nervous! Mr. and Mrs. Zhao are both in their forties, and they have a son younger than me. His grandmother also lives with them.

Could you give me some advice? Should I bring a gift? In America, we usually bring the host something small, like food. Is that a good idea? Also, what are the right table manners? What are some good conversation topics in China? Is there anything else I should know? I’m worried about doing something silly. It could give people the false impression that I’m a rude person. First impressions are so important that I don’t want to say or do anything wrong!

I’m looking forward to hearing from you soon!

Cheers!

Tina

Passage 3

Symbols of Chinese Culture

Chinese culture is one of the oldest in the world, and it is rich in traditions and beliefs. Many of the things you see, hear, or even taste in China may be symbols with special meanings!

Dragons

In many Western stories, dragons are frightening monsters. However, people in China are not frightened of them! Instead, they think dragons are a symbol of power and good fortune. Chinese dragons are so popular in China that you can see them in many places, such as vases, buildings, money, clothes, paintings, and jewellery! The word for "dragon" even appears in names and idioms. For example, "to hope that one's children become dragons" means that parents hope their children will do well in life. In China, people think dragons are so powerful that they call themselves the descendants of the dragon!

The colour red

In China, red is a powerful colour with special meaning. Many people think it brings good luck and wealth, so you will see red decorations such as paper-cuts, couplets, and lanterns during festivals like the Chinese New Year. People think red is so lucky that they wear it during celebrations. At traditional Chinese weddings, both the bride and groom wear red. Red also has positive meanings in other cultures. For example, a red carpet shows importance, and red roses symbolize love. However, in Western culture, red could sometimes mean loss. If a company has "red ink" or is "in the red", it means that they are losing more money than they are earning.

Lucky numbers

Certain numbers are lucky in China because they sound like other Chinese words with positive meanings. "Six", for example, sounds like "flow". It symbolizes things going well. The number "two" is also lucky, because the Chinese believe that good things come in pairs. "Eight" sounds like a word which means "to make a fortune", and it symbolizes wealth. Lastly, "nine" has the same pronunciation as the character "久", which means "long lasting". So "nine" has come to symbolize a long life. On the other hand, "four" sounds like "death". Some people find this number so unlucky that they avoid using it in their phone numbers. But China is not the only place with special numbers. In America, for example, "seven" is a lucky number while "thirteen" is an unlucky number.

KS Conjunctions (so / such … that, unless, as soon as)

连词 (so / such … that / unless, as soon as)

We use so / such … that to show result. "So" is followed by an adjective or adverb while "such" is followed by a noun or noun phrase, and the "that-clause" tells the result brought by the degree. When a noun is modified by many, much, few, little, we use only so, not such.

我们使用 so / such … that 用来表示结果。so 后面接形容词或者副词而 such 后面接名词或者名词短语，that 引导的分句说明由该程度带来的结果。当名词前有 many, much, few, little 修饰时只用 so 不用 such。

We use unless to talk about condition. It means "if … not". It introduces the only condition for something to happen. The adverbial clause of condition introduced by unless usually follows the rule: the main clause uses the future tense while the subordinate clause uses the present tense.

我们使用 unless 用来表达条件，意思等同于"如果不…就…"，引出某事发生的唯一条件。通常，由 unless 引导的条件状语从句遵循"主将从现"原则。

We use as soon as to talk about time. It means "immediately after something happens". It shows one action takes place right after another action finishes. The adverbial clause of time introduced by as soon as usually follows the rule: the main clause uses the future tense while the subordinate clause uses the present tense.

我们使用 as soon as 用来表达时间，意为 “一…就…”，表示一个动作在另一个动作发生之后立刻发生。通常，由 as soon as 引导的时间状语从句遵循“主将从现”原则。

Poems about Crossing Culture

We and They

Rudyard Kipling

Father and Mother, and Me,
Sister and Auntie say
All the people like us are We,
and everyone else is They.
We eat pork and beef.*
They eat rice from a leaf.*
We shoot birds with a gun.*
They hunt lions with spears.*

We dress to our own taste.*
They wear their ceremonial gear.*
All good people agree
*All nice people call themselves We and everyone else Them.
But cross the over-sea,
you may find yourself seen
as just another Them!

Proverbs about Crossing Culture

- When in Rome, do as the Romans do.
- If you talk to a man in his language, it goes to his heart.
- A melting pot produces mixed flavours.
- All nations shall live in harmony.
- A man of virtue pursues harmony but does not seek uniformity;
  A petty man seeks uniformity but does not pursue harmony.

UNIT 15 A Good Read

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Peter: What have you read recently, Fu Xing?

Fu Xing: I've just finished Alice's Adventures in Wonderland by Lewis Carroll. It's a fantasy classic about a girl who gets lost in a magical world. Have you ever read it, Peter?

Peter: I've never read it, but I've watched the movie.

Fu Xing: You should read the book too! I've always preferred the book to the movie.

Peter: I will! What's your favourite part of the book?

Fu Xing: Do you remember when Alice finds a tiny door? She drinks from a bottle and grows smaller …

Peter: I remember! Then she realizes she's forgotten about the key on the table, but she's grown too small to reach it.

Fu Xing: Yes, then she eats a magic cake and grows bigger!

Peter: I guess you really love this book!

Fu Xing: Yes. I've always loved reading fantasy books. And this story is about growing up. I find it interesting.

Passage 1

The Secret Garden

(A summary of Frances Hodgson Burnett's The Secret Garden)

In this story, Mary Lennox, a spoiled and selfish 10-year-old girl goes to live with her uncle, Mr Craven, after her parents pass away. Her uncle has a huge house, but he is seldom there. Mary spends a lot of time alone and gets bored. At night she often hears crying coming from somewhere.

One day, Mary hears about a beautiful garden. It belonged to her uncle's wife. After she died, the garden became a painful memory for him, so he locked it up. No one has seen it for ten years.

LGPL Free as in Freedom

One morning, Mary finds an old key. When it unlocks a half-hidden door, she discovers the secret garden inside! Unfortunately, nobody has taken care of the plants, and therefore, much of it is in a bad state.

Later, Mary tells her secret to a new friend, Dickon. The young boy knows a lot about gardening, and they work together to make the garden beautiful again. One night, Mary hears someone crying again and discovers Colin, her cousin. He is unhappy and weak because he has lived alone in a hidden room since his mother's death. He has not walked for years because he thinks he has an illness. Mary and Dickon tell him stories about the garden and take him secretly to see it.

Over time, Colin grows stronger. The fresh air and beautiful garden are good for him, and he proves that he is not ill when he gets to his feet for the first time in years! The three friends spend time together in the garden and grow happier day by day.

In the end, Mary's uncle returns home. To his great surprise, he sees Colin walking and running, and he discovers that the secret garden has become as alive and beautiful as it ever was!

Passage 2

My favourite book is The Old Man and the Sea. It was written in 1952 by the American writer Ernest Hemingway. The book became popular very quickly. In 1953, it won the Pulitzer Prize.

The main character is a fisherman who hasn’t caught anything for months. One day he catches a huge fish, but he has to fight for days to kill it. He finally succeeds, but he can’t pull the fish onto his boat. When the fisherman is on his way back, sharks eat the fish, leaving nothing but bones.

This book has taught me not to give up or doubt myself. I’m inspired by how hard the fisherman fights, even though he loses the fish in the end. As Hemingway said, “Man is not made for defeat. A man can be destroyed but not defeated.” Even though I’ve already read the book three times, I’m not tired of it yet. If you’ve never read Ernest Hemingway, I recommend this book.

Passage 3

The Boy and the Elf

[Nils, a young Swedish boy, is standing next to a desk. His parents are by the door, ready to leave.]

Mother: Nils, we're going out. Make sure you study, and don't be mean to the farm animals.

Nils: I haven't been mean to the animals in ages.

Father: Yesterday you pulled the cat's tail.

Mother: And you ran after the hens.

Father: And we've just caught you throwing shoes at the cow.

Nils: [Laughing] Okay, I promise to be good!

[Nils's parents shake their heads and leave. Nils sighs and sits down.]

Nils: Reading is so boring! I haven't had any fun for so long. I wish something would happen.

[An elf enters quietly through the front door. Nils sees it.]

Nils: An elf! I've never seen one of those before ... I'm going to catch it!

[Nils catches the elf.]

Elf: [Screaming] Let me go! I'll give you an old coin.

Nils: I'm not sure ... What else have you got?

Elf: A silver spoon ... and a big gold coin!

Nils: Okay ... I could let you go.

Elf: Thank you!

Nils: But actually, I don't think I will. Come here!

[There is a loud BANG, and Nils falls over. When he gets up, the elf has disappeared, and Nils has become smaller. The elf has turned him into another elf!]

Nils: Where has that elf gone? And why has the desk got bigger?

[He walks outside and sees a cat, a hen, and a cow. All are now bigger than him.]

Nils: Wow, the animals have grown bigger too.

Cat: We haven't got bigger, Nils. You've got smaller.

Hen: You're smaller than us now, actually.

Cow: You've been mean to us, Nils. And now you're going to pay the price.

Nils: Oh, I'm really sorry about all that. But look, could you help me find that elf? I need him to turn me back into a boy.

Cat: Get him!

[The animals chase after Nils.]

KS Present Perfect Tense I 现在完成时 I

The present perfect tense is used to describe past actions connected to the present, such as experiences, recent events, ongoing situations, or results that matter now. It does not specify an exact time; instead, it highlights relevance now. The basic structure is: S + have/has (not) done + other elements. The time marker for the present perfect tense are already, yet, never, ever, just, etc.

现在完成时用来描述与现在有关联的过去动作，例如人生经历、新近发生的事件、持续的状态，或是对当下有影响的结果。它不指明确切的过去时间，而是强调动作和现在的关联性。基本结构：主语 + have/has（not）+ 过去分词 + 其他成分。本时态的时标词包括：already, yet, never, ever, just 等。

"Already" is mostly used in affirmative sentences, and usually placed between the auxiliary verb have/has and the past participle.

Already 意为"已经"，多用于肯定句，放在助动词 have/has 和过去分词之间。

"Yet" is mostly used in negative sentences or questions, and usually goes at the end of the sentence.

Yet 意为"还；已经"，多用于否定句或疑问句，一般放在句末。

"Never" is used in affirmative sentences to express negative meaning, and usually placed between the auxiliary verb have/has and the past participle.

Never 意为"从未"，用于肯定句来表达否定含义，放在助动词 have/has 和过去分词之间。

"Ever" is mostly used in questions, and usually placed between the auxiliary verb have/has and the past participle.

Ever 意为曾经，多用于疑问句，放在助动词 have/has 和过去分词之间。

"Just" describes an action finished a moment ago, and usually placed between the auxiliary verb have/has and the past participle.

LGPL3 Free as in Freedom

Just 意为“刚刚”，多用于肯定句，放在助动词 have/has 和过去分词之间。

The rules for changing verbs into past participles (vpp, done) are the same as those for changing them into the past tense (vpt, v-ed).

动词变成过去分词遵循与变成过去式相同的规则（参见本系列教科书第一册第 15 单元）。

Tips on Writing a Book / Film Review

The purpose of a book or film review is to give your informed opinion on a work in a clear and simple way. Without bells and whistles, these reviews combine brief plot introduction with personal comments. They show the writer's own ideas and feelings about the book or film. Here are some steps to write this kind of essay:

➢ Prewriting:

1) Spend some time thinking about the main content, characters and your general impression of the book or film.

2) Note down impressive scenes, key details and your supporting opinions.

3) Make a simple plan. It shows what you will write in each paragraph, and put your ideas in a clear order.

➢ Drafting: The essay follows the basic structure below:

· Paragraph 1: Opening. Start with an interesting sentence to catch readers' eyes. Add a main sentence to tell readers your overall opinion and what you want to talk about in your review.

· Paragraph 2: Body, brief introduction of the book or film.

· Paragraph 3: Ending. Restate your general view and talk about the value or influence of the work in simple words.

➢ Revising: Read your draft several times and ask yourself these questions:

1) Do you introduce the work properly? Do you use useful examples from the book or film?

2) Can readers easily and clearly understand what you write?

3) Do not write off-topic ideas. Avoid telling the whole story.

➢ Editing: Check your essay carefully. Fix all grammar and spelling mistakes. Also, change your sentences to make your writing smoother and easier to understand.

UNIT 16 Making a Difference

A Dialogues & Passages

Conversation

Ella: Hi, Teng Fei. What are your plans for the summer vacation?

Teng Fei: I think I'll do some volunteer work at a nursing home with my youth group. I've been a volunteer there since last year.

Ella: Oh! What do you do?

Teng Fei: I exercise with the elderly to help them stay active. Sometimes I play Chinese chess with them. I've even taught some of them how to use a mobile phone.

Ella: That's great. Do their families visit them often?

Teng Fei: Some do, but not all. Many elderly people are very lonely.

Ella: That makes me sad. We'll all be old one day too. It's important to care for the elderly.

Teng Fei: That's right! You know, they actually have so many interesting life stories and experiences to share with us.

Ella: Can I join your group of volunteers? I'd love to help.

Teng Fei: Yes, come along! It's fun to volunteer together.

Passage 1

Ladies and gentlemen, thank you for inviting me to speak to you about Blue Sky Rescue today. Let me begin with my own story.

Back in 2008, I was hiking in the mountains with some friends when one of them fell and got a bad head injury. We had to find help quickly, so we called an emergency number. It was already dark, and we couldn't even see where we were. After some time, we heard dogs barking and the voices of the Blue Sky Rescue team. I nearly started crying. We were so thankful that they found us!

I've never forgotten that day. Since then, I've wanted to help others too. I signed up with Blue Sky Rescue in 2009, and I've been a volunteer ever since. We've been to schools and other communities to teach children and adults how to stay safe and prepare for the worst. We've also rescued people during emergencies. We've provided medical aid and searched for missing people after natural disasters, like the 2013 earthquake in Ya'an and the typhoon in the Philippines in the same year. In 2023, we even helped in places as far away as Türkiye!

Working as a volunteer has taught me many practical life-saving skills. It has also helped me understand the power of teamwork because it's the key to successful rescues. Most of all, being a volunteer has taught me the value of every life.

The work is difficult. It's voluntary, so we aren't paid. We often go without food or sleep. But our primary goal has always been to save as many people as we can. I'm just an ordinary person, but I'll rush into danger, just like everyone else in Blue Sky Rescue. To the people we've saved and their loved ones, I know we're their heroes. And that makes everything we do worth it. We want to do even more, but we can't do it all alone. Will you join us as a volunteer? Together we can make a difference!

Unusual Volunteers

"Come here! What a good boy!" Those were words I never expected to hear from my mum when I visited her in hospital. Mum had been sick for a long time now, and she often seemed sad and tired. I didn't expect to hear her laughing. It has been a long time since I heard my mum sounding so happy! But when I rounded the corner, I understood everything.

Mum had a very unusual visitor—a dog!

A regular volunteer at the hospital, Anna, was there with her therapy dog, Banjo. Anna was kind enough to share her story with me. An animal lover from an early age, Anna has always had a dog or two at home since she was young. Often, just playing with them was enough to help her feel happy and relaxed after a long day. But one day, Anna realized that not everyone was lucky enough to have a pet. What could she do? Could she work with her own dogs to help others?

Before long, she found the answer. Today, Anna and Banjo often visit places like hospitals and nursing homes to bring a moment of joy to people who are sick, sad, lonely, or disabled. Banjo has worked as a therapy dog for almost three years. When people are stressed, it often takes them longer to get better. A therapy dog helps people feel better and be less stressed, often just by being there! At the hospital, Mum petted Banjo, gave him a snack, and even threw a small ball for him to catch. This made her forget that she was sick, if only for a moment.

For people like my mum, moments like this are very valuable. She always looks forward to my visits, but now she also looks forward to seeing Anna and Banjo again. If I'm lucky enough to have a dog of my own in the future, I'll try to volunteer just like Anna and Banjo!

KS1 Present Perfect Tense II 现在完成时 II

The present perfect tense with since describes an action or state that started in the past and continues up to the present. Since is used before a point in time or a clause in the past tense. We use how long to ask questions about phrases or clauses introduced by since.

现在完成时可通过 since 加时刻或一般过去时从句来描述始于过去且持续到现在的动作或状态，since 后的时刻或分句用 how long 提问。

The present perfect tense with for describes an action or state that started in the past and continues up to the present. For is used before a period of time. We use how long to ask questions about phrases introduced by for.

现在完成时可通过 for 加时间段来描述始于过去且持续到现在的动作或状态，for 后的时间段用 how long 提问。

The verbs used here must be continuous verbs. Short-lived verbs cannot be used with for or since in this usage.

Since 和 for 必须与延续型动词而非短暂性动词搭配。

KS2 Conversion between Short-lived Verbs and Continuous Verbs 顺延转换

Short-lived verbs describe actions that finish in a moment and CANNOT be used with for or since to show a lasting state. Therefore, it is of great necessity to replace short-lived verbs with their corresponding continuous states when we want to express how long the state lasts.

短暂性动词描述瞬时动作且不能与 since 和 for 连用表达持续状态。因此，若要表达状态持续情况，需要将其替换为对应的延续形态。
